Visit Old Friends

Stopping for visits with well known former local people now living in the west or southwest, added zest to the recent vacation travels of Mr. and Mrs. William Hippensteel, of 1081 Broadway, Benton Harbor.

The Hippensteels arrived home this week from Tucson, Ariz., having made the trip by way of the Rio Grande valley and McAllen, Texas.

While at Tucson, they stayed at the Bonita hotel, which is owned and managed by Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Johnson, formerly the Johnson grocers of Fair Plain.

They also took a trip to Tombstone, Ariz., where they called on Ted Carmeth, former operator of the Ray-Ted night club, south of St. Joseph, now known as Harveys. Carmeth has a restaurant and grocery at Tombstone where the Hippensteels report he and his wife have built two beautiful modern homes—one for themselves and one for their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Wagner. The son-in-law operates the grocery and Carmeth looks after the restaurant business.

During their Tucson sojourn the local couple saw Harry Hoppe, who retired from the Troost Furniture store in St. Joseph this winter and moved west, purchasing a home with four acres of ground at St. David, Ariz. Hoppe had been employed at the St. Joseph store for

World Reds Offer Human Barter

NO, IT'S NOT A RUN ON BANK—The usual last minute rush to obtain 1953 car licenses was much in evidence this morning at the state auto license bureau, 515 Ship st. Several hundred were lined up when Bureau Manager Kenneth Higbee opened for business at 8:30. The first standee got in line at 6:20. The long line extended around the corner of the Peoples State bank, down the 10 block on State st. (Herald-Press photo.)

Auto License Buyers Play Good Samaritans

Auto license deadline time may be one of frayed nerves and tired feet from waiting in line, but the American public-twin city version-still keeps its Good Fellow spirit alive.

Friday, at the license bureau here, a middle aged colored woman suddenly discovered, just as she was about to get her plates, that she had lost a $20 bill. It was the only money she had with her.

Mrs. Frank Cleary, of Fair Plain, an extra clerk called in to help out in the last minute rush of anxious motorists, came to the rescue.

"I'll give a dollar to help this woman," she cried to the 150 people jammed into the office," who else will help out?"

Within five minutes this informal "auctioneering" produced almost $25—five dollars more than she had lost.

The plates for the stranded woman came to $10.85.

"Shilling" the crowd for Mrs. Cleary were two other extra clerks, Mrs. Martin Kasischke, of 325 Lake ct., and Mrs. Kenneth Higbee, of Highland ave, Benton Harbor, wife of the license bureau manager.

Expect Cold Weather To Stay Over Week-End

(By The Associated Press)

Colder weather spread over wide areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard today. Northern midwest states got the brunt of the cold mass from Canada, with temperatures in some areas dipping below zero.

The cold was expected to continue over the week-end, with lowest readings forecast for Minnesota—10 to 15 below zero tonight.

Snow and rain fell in northern areas. Light snow fell in Minnesota and western Wisconsin and in a narrow band from eastern Wyoming northwestward to Idaho. Rain extended from Idaho westward into western Washington. Snow flurries continued in Michigan, northern Ohio and western New York. Fair weather prevailed in other sections of the country.

Temperatures early today were mostly in the 30's and 40's over most of the region west of the Rockies.

MICHIGAN GOP CONTROL FIGHT

Summerfield Still Top Man In Pary As New Leaders Seek Rule

By JACK I. GREEN

LANSING, Feb. 28 (AP) — Look for a continued struggle for power in the Michigan Republican party as new leadership wrestles for control.

And look for Arthur E. Summerfield, national committeeman from Michigan and U. S. postmaster general, to stay clear of the squabbles, unless it begins to get out of hand.

It is difficult to pin down all the angles yet because the principals aren't talking and because it still is too soon to be climbing out on any limbs. The year 1953 is a year of political retrenchment, of laying new lines and building new fences.

For a goodly number of years now, Summerfield has been the most potent force into the Michigan GOP. There have been those who opposed him, but when the showdown came Summerfield always seemed to come out on top.

Always attempting to avoid the appearance of a boss, Summerfield usually had to step in at state conventions to iron out the conflicts between various wings of the party.

But at the recent spring convention in Detroit, there was a vast vacuum where once Summerfield stood.

And into that vacuum from one side rushed Secretary of State Owen J. Cleary and into it from the other side rushed Attorney General Frank G Millard and State Treasurer D. Hale Brake.

Now Cleary, long state GOP

SHAH OF IRAN CANCELS TRIP

Abdication Move Hinted Because Of Dispute With Mossadegh

BULLETIN

THERAN, Iran, Feb. 28 (AP)—Raging mobs bent on keeping Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi in power drove Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh out of his home today and forced him to take refuge in a U. S. point four headquarters next door.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi sought to leave Iran and then cancelled his plans today, the Iranian radio announced. There were hints he was seeking to abdicate because of a dispute with Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

The 33-year-old saha announced plans for his departure at 5 p. m. (8:30 a. m. EST), but a little later the Tehran radio broadcast a palace communique saying he had changed his plans. This communique said he had planned to leave for Europe because of his health but changed his plans because of public demand.

A short time before, the British foreign office announced it had received a report from the United States embassy here "dealing with the future of the shah of Iran." A spokesman said he had no direct information of reports that the shah was abdicating.

Tehran dispatches said Ayatullah Seyed Abolghassem Kashani, Moslem religious chief and speaker of parliament, had initiated steps to prevent the shah's leaving the country.

A member of the presidential board of parliament, on Kashani's request, said it had called a closed session of parliament. And had asked the shah not to leave the country. From the interest being taken by Kashani it appeared that political reasons were involved in the shah's actions.

BRITISH 'SPY' OFFERED FOR MALAY WOMAN

Trade First Link Of West Communists To Uprising In Malaya

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP)—World communism today offered a sensational human barter—a British businessman in a Hungarian jail for a Chinese girl guerrilla chief facing the gallows in the jungles of far-off Malaya.

The trade was authoritatively said to have been suggested to the British legation in Budapest, Hungary, and to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in London.

The British foreign office said it was considering the proposed exchange but added that no decision had yet been reached.

In Budapest, British Minister Robert M. A. Hankey told newsmen he could neither confirm nor deny the report. "I'm sorry, but I can't comment, nor can I confirm nor deny," the envoy declared.

Central Figures

The central figures involved in the offer were:

Edgar Sanders, 42-year-old cousin of movie star George Sanders, who was sentenced to prison on spy charges along with American Robert Vogeler in February, 1950.

Lee Meng, alias Lee Ten Tai, now 25, a petulant-looking Chinese woman accused by the British of being one of the highest-ranking female Communists in embattled Malaya. She was seized in the rich tin-mining state of Perak in July, 1952. After two trials, she was sentenced to hang for possessing a hand grenade in violation of Malayan emergency regulations.

The unusual exchange offer, spreading over two continents, pointed up the intricate ties of the world Communist movement. It also

Immunity To Cancer Produced In Rabbits By Using Skin Tumor

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28 (AP)—University of Southern California scientists said today they had produced cancer immunity in rabbits by implanting a tumor in the skin for a few hours only.

Just what the rabbit takes from the tumor to produce the immunity is not known. There is no evidence of immunity factors in the blood, apparently the immunity is in the body issue rather than in the blood.

Dr. A. M. Schechtman, Mary Millard and Paul Terasaki of the zoology department are conducting the study. It has been known for some time that live cancer tissue planted into the skin of rabbits makes them immune to the growth of the cancer, but heretofore it has been thought that the cancer must remain in the skin for at least several weeks before immunity developed.

The reasearchers have found that the implanted tumor may be removed in a short time, but immunity develops just the same and is apparently permanent.

However, if the cancer tissue is planted anywhere except in the skin the rabbit is killed by the cancer, they said. The tumor used is the Brown-Pearce tumor, which is similar to human skin cancer.

Ike To Decorate South Haven GI

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—A marine corporal from South Haven, Mich., will be awarded the Medal of Honor by President Eisenhower March 12, the first war hero to be decorated by the new president.

The Marine corps announced today that Cpl. Duane Edgar Dewey, 21, who won the nation's highest military honor for saving two lives by smothering an enemy grenade, will receive the award at White house ceremonies.

Dewey, then a machine gunner in the 5th Marine regiment in Korea, and a comrad lay wounded on the battlefield last April 16. A navy medic was attempting to treat them when a grenade dropped nearby.

Dewey pulled the navy corpsman to the ground, shouted a warning to the other marine and hurled himself on the grenade, saying: "Doc, I got it in my hip pocket."

The exploding grenade injured Dewey so seriously that he was in hospitals for 50 days, first in Korea, then in Japan. Later he was transferred to navy hospitals at Mare Island, Calif., and Great Lakes, Ill.

After recuperating from his wounds, Dewey was released from active duty last August and returned to South Haven, where he resides with his wife and their three-year-old daughter at 556 Broadway.

Cpl. Dewey entered the Marine corps on March 7, 1951. He was attached to Company E, 5th Marine regiment, stationed at combat outpost just outside the truce area.

He was born in Grand Rapids and went through school in Muskegon. He married the former Bertha Bierhalter in May of 1951.

State Highway Death Toll Shows Startling Increase Over 1952

LANSING, Feb. 28 (AP)—A marked increase in the number of highway deaths and injuries in Michigan for January was reported today by state police.

There were 139 deaths in January—an increase of 58, or 72 per cent, over the 81 persons killed during the same month last year.

There were 3,954 injuries in January, 20 per cent more than the 3,282 a year ago. Accidents totalled 15,152, one per cent more than the 14,969 for the same month last year.

The sharp gains was attributed mainly to heavier travel and higher speeds because of general open winter driving conditions.

All the increase in deaths occurred on rural trunkline highways. Injuries were up about the same percentage in both urban and rural areas.

If the present trend continues, state police said, this year will be the worst for accidents, or one of the worst, on record.

To combat the soaring accident rate, all drivers were urged to cooperate with the statewide safety program for March being sponsored by the state safety commission.

JELKE PLANS EARLY APPEAL

Oleo Heir Convicted On Two Counts In N. Y. Vice Trial

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Counsel for Minot (Mickey) Jelke say they will appeal the conviction of the young margarine heir on two counts of compulsory prostitution.

An all-male jury last night found the 23-year-old Jelke guilty on two of three counts, but recommended mercy.

Immediately after the verdict, chief defense counsel Samuel Segal said:

"The case will be appealed after the sentence—definitely."

The blue ribbon panel deliberated less than five hours to reach a decision, cluminating a 25-day trial featuring closed door prosecution testimony by admitted call girls who plied their trade in cafe society circles.

General Sessions Judge Francis L. Valente scheduled sentencing for March 20. Jelke, pale and shaken by the verdict, was remanded to city prison pending his possible release next week on bail.

He faces a maximum of 40 years in jail, 20 years on each count. Under law, the minimum term for compulsory prostitution is two years, but the court has the power to suspend execution of sentence. The jury's mercy ples in no way binds Judge Valente.

Jelke was convicted of inducing Pat Ward, 19, into prostitution and attempting to do likewise with 25-year-old Marguerite Cordova. The jury acquitted Jelke of trying to force Pat Thompson, 23, into prostitution.

The jury, made up of 11 married men and a bachelor, got the case at 2:47 p. m. (EST) and brought in its verdict at 7:10 p. m. (EST)—four hours and 23 minutes.

After Jelke was led away to his cell, his attorney, Samuel Segal, was asked how the verdict affected his client.

"We didn't ask him," Segal replied, "he's just a kid and so I didn't ask him."

CHARGES FLY BETWEEN DEMS, GOP ON BLAME

Benson Announces Several Price-Support Moves To Halt Decline

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—A new sag in farm prices—the sixth drop in as many months—added new fuel today to the sizzling dispute between Republicans and Democrats about who is to blame and what to do.

The agriculture department yesterday officially announced a decline of 1.48 per cent from mid-January to mid-February which put levels 8.84 per cent below a year ago.

This decline—plus a defense of Republican farm policies and of Secretary of Agriculture Benson—touched off a lively exchange of verbal brickbats in the senate late yesterday.

Announces Moves

Secretary Benson announced several price-support moves expected to stabilize the farm price levels.

He said the department for another year will continue to support butter and other dairy products at 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a price officially declared to be fair to farmers in terms of what they must buy.

The agriculture department announced also that it will support this year's corn crop at a national average of $1.58 a bushel, two cents below last year's support, and rice at $4.84 a hundred pounds, down 20 cents from last year.

Sen Bridges of New Hampshire, ranking Republican and appropriations committee chairman, started the senate wrangle by blaming recent Democratic administrations for lower farm prices and income and "unmanageable surpluses."

He said the new Eisenhower administration and Secretary Benson would "restore again to American agriculture stability, freedom of action and local control."

Corn Wasted

Bridges said the Democratic administration allowed 142 carloads of government corn to spoil when it could have been used by drought-stricken cattle feeders in the southwest.

"If the same conditions exist in the storage of other commodities, the cost to the American taxpayer will run into the billions of dollars," Bridges said.

Then the Republican spokesman hit hard at proposals by many Democrats to lift the level of government price props.

"The best informed sources indicate that these (farm) prices are not likely to drop much lower," Bridges said.

These remarks drew instant protests from Democrats, with Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) and Kerr (D-Okla) leading the attack.

"There is a depression in the making," Humphrey said, adding that farm prices were off 11 points while consumers food costs had dropped less than 2 per cent.

"This is the beginning of the repudiation of a campaign pledge," Humphrey continued, after contending that during the last election campaign President Eisenhower promised farmers 100 per cent parity.

IKE CHAGRINED AT GOLF SCORE

To Turn Over Painting Of Bobby Jones To Famed Golfman

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower, reportedly disappointed about his golf game, fixed his sights on a score in the 80's today and got ready to welcome Bobby Jones—an old friend who made golf history.

Eisenhower, vacationing over the week-end at the Augusta National club, agranged to turn over to Jones a portrait of him which the president painted.

Jones, unable to play golf any more because of a back ailment, was scheduled to arrive from Atlanta late this afternoon. He will receive the painting from Eisenhower at the club house.

Eisenhower is living at the golf course in Jones' white frame cottage. The president flew here from Washington Thursday and will return tomorrow.

Eisenhower spent a good part of the day on the links yesterday and was said to have been somewhat chagrined about his score for 18 holes.

"All I'm going to say is that he didn't shoot under 90," said James C. Hagerty, the president's press secretary.

"Did he shoot under 100? A reporter asked.

"I'm not going to say any thing more," Hagerty smiled.

PLAN HAGAR ZONING CODE

Petition Is Filed With Township Board By Sponsors

Movement for Hagar township zoning regulations moved a step nearer fruition today with the filing of a petition with the township board asking for such a step.

The petitions request the township board, in conjunction with the county probate court, to draft a proposed zoning law and building code, which will be submitted to the voters of the township for adoption or rejection.

Among the leaders in the zoning effort are F. W. Farquhar, Gordon Hosbein and Howard Galehouse.

Spokesmen for the movement said there is no intention to bring about the imposition of harsh restrictions. What they want is a flexible, lenient code which would permit farmers in the area to erect transient housing, but would act as a buffer against encroachment upon residential areas by industries and places of business. Hagar borders Lake Michigan.

It was stressed that there is no connection between the zoning agitation and a recent announcement by a private corporation of plans for a corporate cemetery in Hagar township. The zoning campaign was begun before the cemetery issue was raised.

Leaders in the zoning movement said today they have made every effort to discuss the proposal with all residents of Hagar township to determine the general public attitude.

TEACHER SLAIN BY CO-WORKER

Invited From Rehearsal Of Murder Play To Meet Own Death

SUNDOWN, Tex., Feb. 28 (AP)—Richard McChristial, 37, vocational agriculture teacher, was shot to death last night after another teacher called him out of rehearsals for a murder play, "Meet the Body."

Sheriff Weir Clem of Levelland arrested Jack Killingsworth, 30, and said murder charges would be filed today against the teacher.

McChristial was rehearsing the role of the police sergeant in the Sundown high school faculty play. All 13 members of its cast were present for the Friday evening rehearsal.

McChristial was shot 12 times with a .22 caliber semi-automatic rifle.

Sheriff Clem said the 12 remaining members of the cast told him Killingsworth, appearing upset, entered the high school auditorium shortly before 10 p. m. and asked McChristial to go outside with him.

They said McChristial left and the two got into Killingsworth's car. In a few minutes, Sheriff Clem said, Killingsworth returned to the auditorium and told the cast to "go take care of McChristial."

They found the riddled body and the rifle in the car.

McCarthy In One-Day Stand In New York On 'Voice' Investigation

NEW WYORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) planned a one-day stand here today in his investigation of alleged sabotaging of the state department's "Voice of America" progaganda program.

McCarthy contends the broadcasts, intended to counter Communist propaganda, sometimes have sounded "like the voice of international communism."

He declined to name in advance witnesses to be heard behind closed doors and in public session later. He plans to shift the inquiry back to Washington Monday.

McCarthy's investigation parallels to some extent one being run by a senate foreign relations subcommittee. Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), chairman of that group, said yesterday his preliminary studies show "no question that the 'Voice' has not been as effective as it should."

Balking Bus Riders Force Driver To Quit

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28 (AP)—Day after day, week after week, the same two passengers balked when bus driver Ed Van Horn asked them to step to the rear.

Yesterday, Van Horn had enough. He stalked from the crowded city bus and quit.

"I won't take those guys downtown," he snorted to a dismayed transit inspector. "Every morning it's the same thing. It's the same two guys. I'm going to Florida. Right now."

The passengers were put on another bus. And Van Horn, after 10 years on the job, turned in his badge.

K-F, WILLYS MERGER HINTED

Officials Of Both Auto Plants Meet; Willys Denies Rumor

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Officials of the Kaiser-Frazer and Willys-Overland automobile companies reportedly met here yesterday to discuss a merger.

However, Ward M. Canady, the president of Willys-Overland, said last night that "there is no proposal before us or this company."

The report of the meeting first came from a high official of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in Washington. The RFC official, who asked not to be identified, said it doesn't look "like they will come out well."

Canady at first refused to comment, then later in the day issued a brief statement, saying:

"Various individuals and groups, including Kaiser-Frazer, have approached us in the past few years for discussion of merger possibilities. At the present time there is no proposal before us and no action concerning any has been taken."

The RFC official in Washington said the government is certainly "a highly interested spectator" in the reported talks but has not taken a direct part.

His doubts that the deal would come off, the official said, stem from disagreement between the two companies on the vauuation of their respective stocks.

BLOOD DRIVE RECORD—

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Feb. 28 (AP)—An air force record for blood donations was claimed yesterday by the Great Falls air force base with 880 pints donated in two-days—the most successful blood collection ever conducted in Montana. The previous air force record was 729 pints, established by Mountain Home air base in Idaho, spokesmen said.

Otsego Naval Airman Among Crash Survivors

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP).—Aviation Ordnance Man Second Class B. A. Cooley, Otsego, Mich., was among 10 navy airmen rescued from storm-tossed waters in mid-Atlantic last night by a coast guard cutter.

The men were plucked from the sea after their plane reported it was having engine trouble and planned to "ditch." The navy department said in Washington that none of the airmen was injured.

The dunked men were aboard a navy patrol plane that landed in waves kicked up by 30-mile-an-hour winds. But after it reported engine trouble, the craft was tracked by radar and vessels in the area alerted as it went down.

Woman Turns Self Into Torch After Murdering Husband

FORT PIERCE, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—A 70-year-old woman, despondent and distrustful of her husband, drenched her clothing with kerosene yesterday and then set it ablaze.

In this way, Mrs. Katherine Barney, a native of England, committed suicide after she had killed her husband with a hatchet.

Sheriff J. R. Norvell said his investigation showed this grim sequence of events:

Mrs. Barney struck her husband, Edward Leland Barney, on the head with a hatchet as he sat on a chair in a bedroom and followed him into the living room where he fell and where she struck him several times more.

Then she tidied up the two rooms, wiping up the bloodstains from the chair and floor. After that she knotted a handkerchief tightly around her husband's throat.

She then went to the kitchen and turned on the gas, but the pressure was so low she abandoned that attempt at suicide.

It was then, the sheriff related, that Mrs. Barney went to the garage and turned herself into a flaming torch.

SHELL HOLDING SAFETY SERIES

Distribution, Industrial, Traffic Safeguards Stressed

As part of an intensive safety campaign on the streets and highways and within its own plants, the Shell Oil company is conducting a series of monthly seminars at which problems related to every phase of industrial, distribution and traffic safeguards are stressed, visually and in lectures.

At the most recent meeting, held at the Shell bulk plant in St. Joseph Thursday, Shell officials and employes learned that every traffic fatality in the United States represents, directly and indirectly, an economic loss of $95,000. And traffic deaths in 1951 totaled 37,500 and in 1952, 37,300, plus 1,300,000 crippled and disabled. The total cost represented in these gruesome statistics was $3,400,000,000.

Leading off the safety discussion was Baxter Harrington of Detroit, Michigan automotive supervisor for the Shell company. Completing the panel were Woodward Griffin, Detroit, assistant service manager; James Morrell, plant superintendent here, and William Deremo, Grand Haven, traveling auto and truck mechanic. Morrell discussed local safety regulations and problems. Griffin talked on the maintenance and handling of company equipment and Harrington presented a safety film entitled, "A Day In Court," produced by the International Harvester Co.

Frances Willard Day Observed By 3 Oaks Chapter Of WCTU

THREE OAKS, Feb. 28—Frances Willard day was observed Thursday night by the WCTU. The meeting was held at the home of the vice president, Mrs. Richard Portinga.

Miss Olive Portinga read two articles, one written by Anna Gordon, who was Frances Willard's secretary 21 years, and Lady Henry Somerset, who was closely associated with Frances Willard, organizer of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. Frances Willard's birthday is widely observed both here and abroad each year.

Mrs. Richard Portinga read a report of a WCTU district meeting held in St. Petersburg, Fla., this month which was attended by Mrs. R. Hellenga and Miss Esther Hellenga, members of the Three Oaks union who have been spending a few weeks there.

Mrs. Dollie Peddycord read an article entitled "Teen-age Drinking Rated Liquor Board's No. 1 Problem" taken from the Michigan Temperance Foundation, Inc. An article was also read by Mrs. Etta Smith entitled "Roman Catholics Deplore Liquor Advertising Practices," also taken from the Michigan Temperance Foundation, Inc.

The union voted money to the Lillian Stevens and Frances Willard funds. Mrs. Ray Perham presided at the meeting and led the devotoins. There was group singing and prayer by Mrs. Richard Portinga. The hostess served and was assited by her daughter Miss Olive Portinga and Miss Louise Reidel. The next meeting to be with Mrs. Clarence Barnes.

Warm Weather Causes Ferry 'Vacationland' To Stick In Ice Flows

LANSING, Feb. 28 (AP)—The new $55,000,000 state ferry Vacationland has stuck in the Straits of Mackinac ice twice this winter because of the mild weather.

This (apparently) paradoxical statement was made by Deputy State Highway Commissioner George M. Foster to explain the antics of the supposedly unsticksable ice-breaker.

The open winter, he explained, has produced billions of tons of broken ice floes in place of the normal unbroken sheet of ice.

On both occasions when the Vacationland stuck, he said, a strong west wind had been blowing for some time. This funnelled huge quantities of the broken ice from the wide western mouth of the straits into the narrower neck across which the ferries ply.

This created huge windrows of broken ice which extended between 10 and 15 feet below the surface.

It was in this unusual accumulation that the Vacationland stuck, Foster said. He added that this combination of circumstances happens at the most in one out of 10 years.

Last winter, which was more normal, Foster said, the Vacationland had no difficulty with solid ice.

Your America — Day-by-Day — By Clark Kinnaird

"NOT ON YOUR TINTYPE" is a phrase from the invention patented 97 years ago this month (2/19/1856) by Hamilton Smith, a professor at Kenyon College. Though daguerreotypes (silver-coated copper) were introduced in the country in 1839, comparatively few persons were photographed until the 1850's, when Ambrose Cutting's ambrotypes (glass plates) and the cheaper, faster to develop ferrotypes (japanned iron sheets) devised by Smith were introduced. The manufacturer's astute distribution of ferrotypes of Lincoln and other Presidential candidates in 1860 made the general public acquainted with them, and itinerant photographers hawked them with great success. They became tremendously popular among Civil War soldiers and their families, by whom they became known as "tintypes."

Above and left: Typical tintype poses and [1] plate end of a tintype camera, which could make nine exposures at once. For some years, such photos were left by visitors instead of calling cards. The "family album" was introduced to preserve these.

Lawmakers Aim Blow At Gambling, Crime

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP) — Lawmakers in some states are trying to raise the odds against slot machines.

It is part of a widespread move in state capitals to crack down on professional gambling operators.

A survey by the Associated Press showed today that anti-crime measures of many types are under consideration in at least half of the state legislatures.

Among them are proposals to:

Deprive gambling operators of their tools of trade—coin-eating gaming gadgets and betting information communication lines.

Set up state crime investigating commissions.

Increase penalties for narcotics peddlers, particularly those who sell the stuff to youths.

Odds against hitting the jackpot on the contrivance known as the one-armed bandit have been calculated at 1,000 to 1 and up, but the odds against their unhindered operation seem to be mounting.

A federal law, put on the books in 1951, prohibits shipment of slot machines to states where they are illegal. The state measures are designed to deal with them on a within-a-state basis.

Idaho recently enacted a law to ban slot machines, effective next Jan. 1. That will leave only one state, Nevada, where slots can spin legally.

A proposed law aimed at the roots of the business has been introduced in Illinois. That bill would outlaw the manufacture, as well as possession, of slot machines. Rep. John M. King, one of the sponsors, says about 85 per cent of the world's production of the devices is concentrated in Chicago.

Measures introduced in Indiana and Arizona would make gambling devices subject to seizure on sight. The Indiana proposal also would forbid traffic in such devices. A New Hampshire bill would ban pinball machines as well as slots.

Gov. Charles Russell of Nevada, where gambling is legal, has urged the legislature to consider the outlawing of bookmaking.

Bills aimed at bet handlers elsewhere include:

One in Arkansas to make it unlawful to transmit or receive information on sports events for gambling purposes. One in Missouri to make illegal the transmission of racing information within the state. One in Indiana to forbid utilities to furnish facilities for gambling information.

Telephone Bets

A measure introduced in Massachusetts would make it a criminal offense to use a telephone to make a bet.

Another Massachusetts bill would lift the legal veil of secrecy to permit testimony about the state income tax returns of gamblers in criminal investigations.

An anti-gambling code is under study in Kansas. It was drafted by attorney General Harold R. Fatzer. His office says:

"We hope that, if it passes, it will stop all kinds of gambling."

Proposals to create state crime investigating commissions—dubbed "little Kefauver committees" by some capital correspondents—have been made in Massachusetts, Oregon and Indiana.

The New York crime commission, set up in March, 1951, looked into racketeering and racefixing on water and their fronts. It recently urged the legislature to establish a permanent investigation commission with authority to require state and local officials to report on their crime-fighting activities.

Florida's attorney general, Richard Ervin, has suggested a state agency to coordinate the work of county sheriff's and community police and to assign investigators to aid local officers.

A bill introduced in Washington would set up a state department of justice, under the attorney general, with power to step in if and wherever a county prosecutor was not doing his job.

Three Oaks PTA Marks Founders Day With Supper, Entertainment

THREE OAKS, Feb. 28 — The Three Oaks PTA observed Founders' day at the high school. The patrol boys and girls of the school were special guests.

The meeting opened with a potluck supper served in the cafeteria of the school and the decorations were patriotic. There were 30 patrol girls and boys present, and Ernest Schroeder, principal of the school, paid tribute to girls and boys.

The prayer was given by Miss Iva Buckholdt, high school teacher. Mrs. Paul Robert presided at the meeting, and gave a history of the Parent-Teacher association.

There were two past presidents present, Mrs. Lynn Pardee and Mrs. Lee Moore. Mrs. Robert appointed a nominating committee composed of Clayton DeWaters, Mrs. Carver Perkins and Mrs. Curtis Vollman.

The project of buying a new coffee urn was discussed. It was also announced that the play which will be presented by the PTA, "The Black Cat Minstrel," will be presented on the nights of March 26 and 27. They play which has been written by Paul Robert, will be directed by him and Marshall Renbarger.

A group of high school students presented an exhibition of square dancing. Those taking part were Patty Moore, Joan Girod, Pat King, Edna Reitz, Jim Leaser, David Dee, George Tessman and Wayne Morris. Ray Barbour, former local resident now of Buchanan who has a piano studio here, played piano selections. Mrs. Dorothy Johnson and Mrs. Lila Philotoff were in charge of the decorations and Mrs. George Knilola was chairman for the supper committee.

STUDY A-BOMB SIGHT EFFECTS

Danger Of Blindness Is Found Not As Great As Feared

By FRANK E. CAREY
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—The danger of partial or complete blindness from atomic bomb radiations appears to be much less than first indicated from early studies at Hiroshima, a navy medical researcher said today.

Lt. Robert M. Sinskey reported that new studies by the government's atomic bomb casualty commission show that, while at least 154 persons suffered "radiation cataracts" of the eye from the Hiroshima blast, " only a very small percentage" of them have so far shown any major loss of vision. A cataract is a spot on the lens of the eye large enough to obstruct vision.

Sinskey said in an interview that the public needs reassurance on that point.

"The word 'cataract' to the average physician, as well as the laity, connotes severe loss of vision and even blindness," he said.

The evidence to date fails to justify any conclusion that loss of vision is often an inevitable result of an atomic blast, he said. He suggested the public may have been misled by two factors:

1. Early studies at Hiroshima on less than a dozen cases of radiation cataract reported most complained of failing vision.

2. Early scientific reports on radiation cataracts among Hiroshima people dealt only with their occurrence—and did not state to what extent they actually had affected vision, as determined by scientific observation.

Sinskey said the new studies by the commission covered a large number of cataract cases, showing there can be many gradations, ranging from little or no affect on vision up to very serious disorders.

Sinskey, a medical officer, made the statements in answer to questions about a formal report he submitted to the navy and the national research council.

Describing studies he made on 154 cataract cases at Hiroshima, he said 129 were fund to have normal vision and most of the other 25 "serviceable vision."

Only a few, he added, had eye defects that could not be corrected with eye-glasses and "only two patients had to have operations because of loss of vision due to radiation affects upon the eye."

He said little or no change was noted in the size of the cataract formation in most of the patients examined over a three-year period.

He said that, while three years is not an adequate time to draw definite conclusions, "the indications so far are very hopeful."

The U. S. government minted 72,013,352 quarters in fiscal 1951.

Rupert Ends 47 Years As Rosback Employe

Forty-seven years with one company is a long time, says "Little Johnny" Rupert, who retired early this year from his work at the F. P. Rosback company in Benton Harbor, where he was employed as a machinist. Rupert started his long employment with the plant back in 1906.

The 79-year-old man, still enjoying fairly good health, is now residing with his son and family, Attorney and Mrs. Sheldon Rupert, of Paw Paw. His most important future plans seem to be centered on his two grandchildren, Susan and Sheldon, Jr., whom he openly adores.

John E. Rupert began the trade of machinist at the age of 19 and has followed it his entire life. He states that he has carried a union card since the first days of his career, and has served as president of the Benton Harbor and St. Joseph union, AF of L.

"Little Johnny" acquired his appropriate nickname many, many years ago from his dimunitive but active stature of only five feet and two inches. His normal weight has usually been under 100 pounds, which he states has made him the subject of a lot of "ribbing" among the boys at the shop, but he never seemed to mind.

JOHN E. RUPERT

Since the death of his wife, Effie, 14 years ago, Rupert had resided in Mary's hotel in Benton Harbor, spending the week-ends with his family in Paw Paw where he has now taken up permanent residence.

One of Rupert's strongest convictions is that of his political beliefs. "I was born a Republican and will die one," he is often quoted as saying. "Johnny" says he doesn't argue the point with anyone, and doesn't expect anyone to tell him what to do, as his loyalty is definitely with the GOP, "always has been, and always will stay there."

He holds life membership in Lake Shore lodge No. 298, F and AM, Calvin Britain chapter No. 72, and St. Joseph UE local No. 921.

When summer gets here, Rupert plans to spend quite a lot of time fishing on Maple lake and walking through the woods near his son's home with his two grandchildren.

Navy Cutting Down Number Of Reservists From Draft-Age Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—The navy is cutting down sharply on the signing of draft-age, inexperienced men in its reserve.

Officials have said the influx of such men in the reserve was having two results the navy did not desire:

1. It was cutting down on the number of regular enlistees the service could take.

2. It was filling up the reserve, now at about 400,000 strength, with "boots" instead of experienced, rated men whom the navy would like to have on call.

The law requires the navy to put a reservist on active duty if he applies for it. He is elegible for release after not more than 24 months, much of which time is spent in training him. Regular enlistments are for four years. Officials said that because of the number of reservists being placed on active duty the navy was able to enlist only about 25 per cent of the applicants for the regular service.

Accordingly, the navy has set a nation-wide reserve enlistment quota of 2,000 men a month, from which, however, men with previous naval service are excepted.

The quota may be ended in a year, spokesmen said, when large numbers of regulars who enlisted soon after the Korean war started begin to leave.

SPECULATE UN LIE SUCCESSOR

Consider Direct Approach To Vishinsky On Reds' Real Choice

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—Speculation mounted today over a successor to Secretary-General Trygve Lie as some neutral delegates reportedly considered a direct approach to Andrei Y. Vishinsky in an effort to discover Russia's real choice.

Almost as much curiosity was evidenced concerning whom the United States would prefer. Both Vishinsky—chief Soviet delegate—and the new U. S. delegation head, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., are playing their cards extremely close to their chests on this issue.

The security council is expected to meet sometime in March to take up the problem of picking a successor to Lie, who resigned the $45,000 post last Nov. 10.

Lie is said to be determined to leave the world organization as soon as a successor is named. He hopes that action will be completed before the UN assembly adjourns this spring.

One delegate said the council meeting probably would be only the start of talks on the question since it was unlikely that the five permanent council members—Nationalist China, Britain, France, the U. S. and Soviet Russia—would agree quickly on a nominee.

'SPY' TRADE

indicated the high value placed by international communism on the head of the woman jungle leader for whom the Malayan government had posted a reward of 40,000 U. S. dollars.

First Red Tie-Up

It was the first time the European Communist movement had come openly to the defense of an Asian Communist in the bitter Malayan jungle fight.

Despite lack of official comment, the London Daily Express said it had learned that Eden favored accepting the proposal but that the majority of the British cabinet had turned thumbs down.

Sanders' wife sent a telegram to Prime Minister Churchill today saying:

"Please do all possible to release my husband, Edgar Sanders, father of my three girls. Cannot understand ministers' decision after Eden's support."

The world Communist councils in Budapest, Moscow and Peiping were involved appeared obvious. Although Peiping radio continually broadcasts attacks on British attempts to quall the Malayan uprising, this was the first outright Red step to claim as its own a leader of what communism had hitherto pictured as a Nationalist struggle in the British colony.

MICHIGAN GOP

chairman, has always been considered to be Summerfield's hip-pocket. And Millard not only owes his state office to Summerfield, but is a veteran of the so-called "Genesee Crowd" which looked to Summerfield for directions.

The issue at the state convention was the selection of a new state Republican chairman.

On one floor was Cleary, backing John Feikens of Detroit for the chairmanship.

On another floor were Millard and Brake, and U. S. Senators Homer Ferguson and Charles E. Potter. They sought frantically for a strong man to stop Feikens. But Feikens won.

How come? And what does it mean?

Persons in the anti-Feikens camp muttered that they were tired of having the central committee run for Cleary's benefit.

The word at the convention was that Feikens was acceptable to Summerfield, and so were the men whom Millard, Brake and Co., supported.

The next year looks like undercover warfare within the party at home.

Feikens apparently was not the enthusiastic choice of many of those who voted for him. He is on trial in the eyes of many and his leadership may be challenged in the future.

Summerfield still remains the top dog in the Michigan GOP-but there is plenty of contest over who will be the crown prince.

Funds-Pinched Schools Offered New State Aid

LANSING, Feb. 28 (AP)—Further aid was offered in the legislature Friday to public school districts unable to borrow operating funds until the state pays up delayed state school aid grants.

Senator George N. Higgins (R-Ferndale) filed a bill allowing districts to pledge their "full faith and credit" against any loans made and to guarantee repayment from any district funds except the primary school interest fund.

First Picnickers

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Robertson and their four children of New Troy can claim the distinction of being the first 1953 picnickers at the Warren Dunes state park at Sawyer, park keeper Lyle MCDonald reports.

Since beach parties and weiner roasts are not the usual custom in February, McDonald was surprised to see a family arrive several days ago at the almost vacant 900-car parking lot and proceed to unload picnic paraphernalia.

Although the weather was exceeding balmy for winter on the day the Robertsons chose for their early picnic, a brisk wind was blowing off Lake Michigan. The family had a "turn about" party. First they roasted the weiners by the fire and then they turned around and roasted themselves.

House Turned Around

The W. H. Cards are living in a "turned around" house now as a result of Lake Michigan's high waters in 1952.

Mr. and Mrs. Card, who reside on Lake Shore dr., lost 85 feet of bluff on their property last year, due to lake shore erosion, and the encroaching waters endangered their one-story ranch-type home. So the couple solved the problem by moving the central wing of the structure, containing living room, bedroom and kitchen, 275 feet back from its former location.

The move resulted in at least one improvement. The Cards turned their house around so that the large bay window in the living room now faces the lake and overlooks their beautiful garden. The entrance also is on the lake side of the house.

"The moving operation began in the middle of October," Mrs. Card explained, "and we were back in the house again for Christmas."

But much preparatory work was required before the residence could be moved and there is a great deal to be done as a result of the change in location. It was necessary to cut down some trees, remove shrubs and a part of the garden. The house also had to have a new basement.

The Cards will relandscape their grounds and hope to have a nice garden again this spring. They also plan to build an addition to the structure during the spring months.

While the house was being moved, the couple lived in the bedroom wing, which was left in its original location, far enough from the water's edge to be safe. They converted this wing into temporary living quarters and now plan to remodel it for use as a summer cottage.

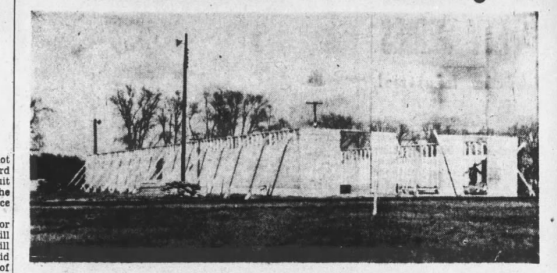
Volunteers Erect Fair Building



Starting from a bare foundation at 9 a. m. Friday, this is what some 60 volunteer workers had completed by 5 p. m. on a 50 by 160 foot exhibit hall at the Youth fair grounds in Berrien Springs. The structure was about 40 per cent completed when the workers laid down their tools Friday afternoon. The job of putting the roof on was underway today, despite an early snow that kept the working force smaller than Friday. Charles Stocker, building bee chairman, said a third day of work probably will be required next week end to complete the big structure. (Herald-Press photo.)

Volunteer workers pushed erection of a 50 by 160 foot exhibit hall at the Berrien County Youth fair grounds near Berrien Springs about 40 per cent of the way to completion in the first day of a building bee yesterday.

The building was completed up to the eaves level.

Despite a light snow fall shortly before starting time this morning, another crew of workers, although smaller than yesterday's, was on hand this morning for the second day of the bee.

Sixteen clear-span trusses, to support the roof over the 50-foot width of the structure, were to be swung into place this afternoon and work started on the roof. The huge wooden trusses, being completed this morning, were to be swung into place with a crane provided by the Ross Carrier Co. of Benton Harbor.

Charles Stocker, Benton Harbor, chairman of the fair association's building committee, explained that because the roof structure is to have no supporting posts in the interior of the building the roof construction is more complicated than for the usual type roof.

Because of the comparatively light crew of volunteers on hand this morning, Stocker said a third day of the bee probably will be required next week end to finish the building.

Some 40 volunteers launched the job Friday morning and an additional 20 joined the working force in the afternoon. Stocker said that while more workers could have been kept busy yesterday he was extremely pleased with the first day's results. Among the workers yesterday was a group of boys from the Berrien Springs Future Farmers of America chapter, led by their chapter advisor, August Lange.

TV To Sponsor 'Oscars' After Filmland Blooper

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28 (AP).—When the Academy awards are televised for the first time March 19, six minutes of the hour program will be devoted to plugging a television set.

Thus the climax of what can be called one of the biggest bonehead plays in recent Hollywood history.

All of the film industry's brass are now admitting that they have been locked in a life-or-death struggle with TV for the past three years. Yet when the industry puts on its biggest event of the year, its competitor is allowed to use the event as a showcase for selling more TV sets.

It's incredible but true. The movie industry has allowed itself to be maneuvered into this comic position. It happened because certain members of andrew their financial support of the academy. The studios argued that they were not allowed any say-so in the running of the academy.

Lacking enough money to put on its annual show, the Academy had to seek a TV sponsor. If the balking studios had maintained their support — which amounted to around $20,000 or a tiny fraction of their annual expenditures—this embarrassing event would have been prevented. But they failed to see the Oscars for what they are—the greatest industry promotion event in the U. S.

"General Motors would pay a million dollars for a promotion like the Oscars," a trade paper editor told me recently. "So would any other big corporation. The Oscars keep the film industry in the news for three months. The event itself makes front pages. It is worth a hundred times what it costs."

But the studios have often failed to see this. They are too often ridden by jealousies and disappointment over not winning Oscars they thought they deserved.

Theater men have proposed that the Oscar event be televised on a closed-circuit to movie houses. That has been done for top prize fights and opera telecasts. But the film industry passed up the proposal.

Now financial necessity has put the event on home channels. Theater men can expect empty houses on March 19.

The real winners in this mixup are the home TV viewers. They and a certain TV manufacturer who will take the bows for bringing Oscar into the homes.

HAL BOYLE SAYS . . .

Making Up Mind Hardest Of Life's Little Tasks

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—The thing most people hate most in this world is having to make decisions.

"I'm tired of always having to make up my mind about something —I'm not going to decide another thing today if it kills me," they threaten.

But they can't escape . . . there is no escape . . . life is an endless choice between one thing and another thing . . . the mere act of drawing a breath is a decision against death . . .

A human being is faced with a linked chain of choices from his moment of birth . . . a child is always born crying, and right away he is teased into trying to laugh . . .

This baby immediately has to begin choosing between being full and empty . . . wet or dry . . . hot or cold . . . silent or noisy . . . held up and fondled or put down and let alone . . . day and dark . . .

The horizons of his growing world widen into few certainties . . . just more and more choices . . . things are never quite set . . . coins and arguments all have two sides . . . he is either a little angel or a little devil . . .

Yep, life at every step offers more and more gruesome twosomes to pick from . . . there is north and south, east and west . . . up hill and down dale . . . downtown and uptown . . . fast and slow . . . hello and goodbye . . . giddyap and whoa . . . good and bad . . . right and wrong . . . here today and gone tomorrow . . .

Shall you work or play? . . . Do this or don't do that? . . . Dream or scheme? . . . wonder or plunder? . . . build up or tear down? . . . weep for what-never-can-be or smile over what-might-have-been?

Always life stands at a crossroads. . . . Sins and pleasures. . . . Passions and proprieties. . . . The freedom of poverty and the captivity of property. . . . Here and there. . . . Near and far. . . . to and fro. . . . One shoe off and one shoe on. . . . Tears and kisses. . . . Hits and misses. . . .

No, ever any rest from it. . . . Your relatives and my relatives. . . . Jungle and clearing. . . . Highways and byways. . . . Mary in haste or repent at leisure. . . . A mind to reason with and emotions to keep you from ever being reasonable. . . . Your dish of tea and my cup of coffee. . . .

Yes or no? . . . Stay or go? . . . Stand up or sit down? . . . The peak or the pit? . . . De you want it sweet or will you take it sour? . . . Sweet? Oh, then do you want one lump or two, please? . . . Shall you stay in your cellar or hit the ceiling? . . . will you be brave or afraid, proud or humble?. . . Take the best or the worst? . . . Be the last or the first. . . .

The human race is just a life-long gallop down a road that is always dividing under your feet, and giving you the task of choosing which path to follow. . . .

I knew a fellow in the army once who had thought about this problem for a long, long time. . . . He was tired of it. . . . "When this war is over," he used to say dreamily, "I'm going to make only one decision every day for the rest of my life—whether to go hunting or whether to go fishing . . . That is the only thing a man ought to have to decide anyway." . . .

He stuck by his decision, too. Most days now he goes fishing. . . . And says nobody ever had life better.

SCAN COLD WAR U. S. EFFECTS

Ike's Two Psychological Moves Stir Wonder On Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP) — In waging its psychological war against the Russians the Eisenhower administration will have to think of the psychological effect it is having at home.

In the long run the degree of support the administration gets for its efforts will depend on the understanding of the people of what's happening and why.

What the administration does will have to be known sooner or later although this doesn't mean it will have to telegraph every punch by stating it publicly ahead of time in ABC fashion.

If some of what the administration has done so far seems vague it may be because it is part of a larger plan which is being unfolded quietly and won't be fully known for some time.

Two Intentions

Publicly the administration so far has announced two intentions which got sensational attention at home and abroad but it has not it seems, disclosed what their full and ultimate purpose is.

Both were announced by President Eisenhower in his state of the union message:

1. He said he'd tell the Seventh fleet to let the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa attack the Communist mainland. Since this is what they had been doing for a year anyway, it may have made the Russians and Chinese Communists wonder if something more drastic was in store for them.

But because the Nationalists had been attacking the mainland in small raids for at least a year, the deneutralization of the fleet caused some puzzlement here and among the western allies who also wondered whether Eisenhower had something else up his sleeve.

2. Eisenhower also said in his message that this country should reject secret war-time agreements with foreign governments which permitted enslavement of any peoples. It was assumed he meant the Yalta agreement to let the people of eastern Europe choose their own governments in free elections

Campaign Platform

In making that statement he was following, in part, the Republican campaign platform which pledged if the party won, that secret agreements made by the Democrats would be repudiated.

Eisenhower didn't go so far as the platform. He didn't call for "repudiation." He knew that if he did the Russians might retaliate, to this country's hurt by repudiating agreements it made with this country.

In the end what Eisenhower asked congress to approve in resolution form was a very much watered-down version of what the party platform had called for in effect, he asked congress to condemn the Russians for playing dirty pool and to say this country would never approve enslavement of any peoples.

Some members of his own party in congress are now wrangling with his administration over this. They want a tougher resolution, but Secretary of State Dulles asked them to let Eisenhower's proposal stand as is.

"This resolution," Dulles said, "is no call to bloody and senseless revolution. On the other hand it is no idle gesture. It is an act of great historical importance and many consequences will stem from it.

Inherent Longing

"As its purpose becomes more and more widely understood, it will, over the coming years, revive the inherent longing for freedom which persists within the captive peoples so that longing becomes a mounting spiritual power which (will) eventually overcome the material power of Soviet dictatorship. . . . ."

Just what consequences would flow from this resolution, Dulles didn't say, nor did he say how he knew in what way the resolution would have any effect at all.

At this point he was asking congress and the people to take his widom on faith. Maybe all the consequences he talked about will some day come to pass. Meanwhile, Dulles' explanation was a vague one.

MEDICINE MAN IN TAX PROBE

J. R. Watkins Co. Cited For Settling $5 Million Claims At Cut Rate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)— A world-wide patent medicine manufacturer, named in a congressional blast at alleged cut-rate settlements of alcohol tax delinquencies, has been charged with conspiracy to evade taxes.

In the senate yesterday, Sen. Williams (R-Del) cited the J. R. Watkins company's affairs as a case in point when he accused the internal revenue bureau of settling more than five million dollars worth of alcohol tax claims for about 10 cents on the dollar.

Also yesterday, a federal grand jury in St. Paul, Minn., indicted the company and 13 persons on a charge of conspiracy to evade taxes on alcohol used in liniment sold as suitable for internal use.

Attorneys for the Winona, Minn., company, which has international connections and sells its products door to door, declared in a statement they believe "no tax at all is due" and that the indictments "raise the whole question of the taxability of alcohol used in the manufacture of medicines."

Williams said the Watkins Co. settled a three million dollar claim for a half million plus withdrawal of a claim for $433,774.97 in tax refunds. He declared 'the amazing part' was that "the criminal phase was completely ignored and the compromise agreement reached by the treasury department apparently without any consultation with the department of justice."

Mother Of Seriously Ill Girl Traced To Texas, But Not Found

SAGINAW, Feb. 28 (AP)—Seven-year-old Delfina Rodriquez—currently Saginaw county hospital's most famous patient—has more friends than she ever could have imagined.

Furthermore, Miss Ruth McClellan, assistant superintendent at the hospital, said the child's mother has been traced to Texas and efforts are being made to find her.

Delfina hasn't seen her mother since September, 1946, when the mother and daughter were found to be suffering from tuberculosis. The mother, was admitted here. The father, a migrant agricultural worker following the crops, dropped out of sight.

Delfina's mother was discharged from Pinecrest, July 14, 1948, but has made no attempt to contact her daughter then. Miss McLellan said the information on Delfina's mother is a year old.

Delfina's lonesome life was publicized in news stories last week.

Miss McLellan said more than 100 letters and cards had been received thus far from throughout the middlewest. Some writers said they wanted to adopt the child. One wanted to become an "aunt," still another, " a magic grandmother."

Livestock And Contents Of Structure Lost In Blaze

BARODA, Feb. 28—All livestock in a large barn on the Carl Nitz farm, one and one-half miles north of Baroda, perished, and the other contents of the barn were lost, when the structuer burned to the ground Friday.

Neighbors saw the entire building ablaze and immediately called the Baroda volunteer fire department at 5 a. m. They also notified the owner, Carl Nitz, who was asleep at the time.

Nitz told Baroda Fire Chief Ralph Painter that the flames were so intense he was unable to get into the building to save the livestock or the produce stored in the structure.

One cow, one steer, five hogs, 12 tons of straw, two tons of hay, six tons of fertilizer, wheat, oats, corn and irrigation pipes were lost in the fire.

The fire department was able to prevent spread of the flames to the chicken coop and tenant house nearby, since the wind was blowing in the right direction, Painter said. The composition shingles on the chicken coop were scorched, but the building did not catch fire.

Painter said the conflagration was believed to have been caused by a "short" in the wiring. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Senate Votes 79 To 0 On Condemning Red Jew Persecution

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)— The senate's 79 to 0 vote for a resolution condemning Russian persecution of Jewish and other minorities points toward similar overwhelming support for President Eisenhower's denunciation of the Soviet's "subjugation of free peoples."

The senate was as unanimous as it ever gets in formally criticizing 'the vicious and inhuman" persecutions by Russia and its satellites of ethnic and religious groups.

Fifteen of 17 absent senators sent word they would have voted for the resolution, leaving only Sens. Cordon (R-Ore) and Jenner (R-Ind) not officially recorded.

As approved yesterday, the resolution put the senate on record as asking the president to appeal to the United Nations for "suitable" action against Soviet acts of persecution. The resolution needs no action by the house.

Specifically the measure protested the persecution of Greek Orthodox congregations; imprisonment of Roman Catholic prelates; harrassment of protestant dominations; suppression of Moslem communities; persecution of the scattering of racial groups in Poland, the Ukraine, in Balkan and Baltic states, and the "increasing persecution" of the Jews.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) told the senate before it acted that Russia's anti-Semitic campaign was directed at "winning over the Arab states" and gaining access "to the oil of the near and Middle East."

Chairman Wiley (R-Wis) of the foreign relations committee said the Russian actions have "horrified the entire civilized world."

PENSIONS AND SOCIAL SECURITY

It has been every American's privilege to work where he pleased, without coercion, and to spend or save the fruits of his labor as he sees fit.

When government controls the individual's savings, it also assumes the right to direct his labor and decide how much of his earnings he may retain as his own. In all history there has been no exception to this principle.

PROFITS SHOW SIGNS OF HOPE

Statements Bring Note Of Cheer To Most U. S. Corporations

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (AP)—Profit statements of corporations now flowing in make pleasant reading for stockholders of railroads and utilities—and not nearly as unpleasant for stockholders of industrials as many had feared earlier.

All classes, taken as a whole, show American business was piling up just about as much net earnings after taxes in 1952 as they did in the previous year. This, in spite of strikes, higher taxes and controls.

Combined earnings of the first 296 manufacturing and service industries to report show net profits down by 7.4 per cent.

Combined earnings of 59 utilities show earnings up by 12.8 per cent.

And 113 leading railroads report combined net earnings up 21.4 per cent over 1951.

Together the 486 corporations show combined profits of $4,713,961,348 in 1952, against $4,682,327,726 in 1951, for a gain of 0.6 per cent.

These, of course, are just a handful of the total of all corporations in the United States. And many of the largest industrial giants are still to be heard from. So that the figures may not look so well when all reports are in, a couple of months hence.

The department of commerce estimates that when all are heard from, 1952 net profits may trail 1951 by 1½ billion dollars.

The first returns show wide variations among industries and among companies within industries.

Of the 296 manufacturing and trade companies, 198 had lower earnings last year. Six of the 59 utilities dropped behind 1951, and 28 of the 131 railroads.

Industries worst hit were: Textiles, down 68.4 per cent; distilleries, down 53.9 per cent; coal, down 47.8 per cent; steel, down 22.1 per cent; drugs, down 20.9 per cent; and mines and metals, down 18.4 per cent.

In the happier column, besides rails and utilities, were: Aircraft, up 21.7 per cent; airlines, up 9 per cent; breweries, up 9.3 per cept; cement, up 5.8 per cent; electric appliances, up 5.2 per cent; food, up 6.3 per cent; machinery, up 13 per cent; and business machines and auto equipment companies, both up a fraction of one per cent.

Textiles, coal and distilleries lay most of the blame on declining sales and high operating costs.

Steel companies were idle for two months during the big strike.

Drug companies found competition much steeper in 1951.

Defense orders and business activity linked with the arms program helped such industries as aircrafts, airlines, cement, machinery and auto equipment to pull ahead of 1951.

Chemical companies report they're on the way up again, after a slump of 4.4 per cent last year.

Retail stores also are doing better than a year ago. Their 1952 earnings, in early reports, show a drop of 6.7 per cent.

Tobacco companies, slipping 1.1 per cent last year, expect new higher prices to reverse the trend this year.

All the companies blame higher taxes for holding down profit totals. But some, like steel, paid less income tax in 1952 than in 1951.

Homes Are Designed For Better Living; Precutting A Method

Present-day homes are designed both for pleasant living and to take advantage of many new and improved materials and equipment items, the National Association of Home builders reports.

Sufficient insulation, vapor barriers, ventilation and heating and cooling systems are part of modern home designs. To give a snugger, better built home, builders often precut structural elements with modern power tools before taking them to the house site. The square cut this affords assures a tight fit to joining members, better workmanship throughout the homes.

Glass For Space

Modern design calls for the most logical use and combination of materials for economy and beauty. Exposed plank and beam ceiling construction has architectural beauty and gives more space while eliminating the need for a false ceiling. Brick is often used on interior walls for textural contrast with wood paneling or other materials. Big expanses of glass are used to add to the feeling of spaciousness to "frame" a view or to admit more sunlight. Double glazing (two sheets of glass with air space between) allows "window-walls" to be used even in cold climates.

Manufacturers have gone along with builders in designing the various parts of the house for beauty, economy and efficiency. Doors are often made of flush panel laminated plywood to eliminate warping, for snug fit. They are light weight and being smooth are easy to clean. Builders hardware locks, door knobs, catches are streamlined, easy-working, quiet, and made to last the life of the home.

Windows come in a variety of frames, sizes, and are easy working, admit more light, and are often removable from inside for easy cleaning.

Modern Kitchen Design

Builders designing homes for modern living think of them in terms of a "machine for living" and take into consideration the many labor-saving appliances required to make the "machine" easier to live in. Many homes of today include complete kitchens with automatic sinks, with electric garbage disposals, automatic dishwashers, cooking ranges, refrigerators, automatic laundries, and exhaust fans. These are arranged scientifically according to usage sequence. Kitchen designers have followed milady through daily chores countless times to determine where the best location would be for the refrigerator or sink. Modern design in the kitchen calls for a food preparation center, a cooking center, and a cleanup center, with proper storage space banked around each area. No wonder today's housewife can accomplish so much work in a day's time and still find time for a bridge game.

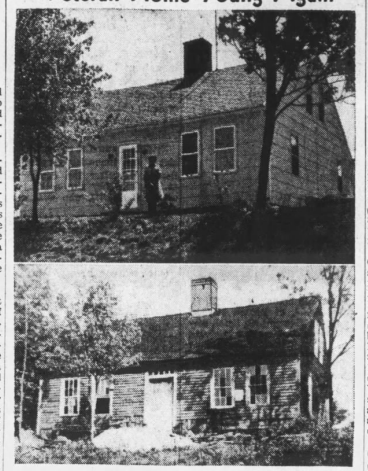
'Warm' Colors In Home Make Cozy Atmosphere

You can "warm" a room with color, homemakers have found. With a warm color of the walls comes also a more "homey" and cozy atmosphere.

The basement recreation room usually is difficult to make warm through decoration because of the cold concrete walls. Even though they are painted, they still are chilly to the touch.

Many home owners have found a successful way of getting the atmosphere they want. They install some all-wood panels called Masonite Tempered Presdwood. Dark brown in color—or paintable in other rich tones—these panels are actually warm to the touch.

Veteran Home Young Again



The new house, top, grew out of the old house, below. Chiefly responsible for the new look are colorful asphalt roof shingles and new white siding. The house had been abandoned for many years before an enterprising couple bought it and remodeled it.

Old houses are like sloppily wrapped packages. What shows on the outside isn't any clue to what's underneath.

The fact is that many old houses are in considerably better shape than they seem to be. They're more wornout on the surface than underneath, and if new roofing, siding, and interior finish are put on an old framework a smart-looking comfortable home is often the result.

The discerning house-hunter shouldn't be discouraged by poor exterior appearance. He should pry off a section of old siding to examine sheathing and studs, and he should closely inspect the roof deck and rafters, joists, sills, the foundation, and other structural parts.

If the structure, or most of it, is sound, chances are good that the house could be rebuilt at considerably less than the cost of a comparable new dwelling.

In remodeling the house pictured above in "before" and "after" versions, the first step was to patch the foundation and put in new sills. Then the roof was reconditioned with hexagonally shaped asphalt shingles. Contributing basic weathering ability, flire-resistance, and a choice of solid and blended colors, new asphalt roofing usually can be applied directly on top of the worn-out material.

To complete the major work on the exterior, the old broken siding boards are covered with new white siding shingles.

Interior improvements began with new flooring. The remnants of old plaster were removed and insulating board was laid over the plaster lath. New wiring and plumbing and a new heating system were installed.

Attic Insulation Aids Fuel Saving

Snug wintertime comfort is a necessity within the home for the family's health and happiness. But it may well become a luxury, too, if fuel bills are excessive due to wasteful heat losses. Homes without adequate weatherstripping, storm doors windows, and insulation are paying a premium every months for less-than-perfect comfort.

Heat is lost from a house by five different routes. In a typical one-story uninsulated house, the points of heat loss are the ceiling or roof, ouside walls, doors and windows, infiltration (air leaks and ventilation), and floors. With an existing house lacking proper weatherproofing, there are four important ways that heat can be saved.

The proper application of insulation to the ceiling or roof is the first step. By insulating the attic of an uninsulated home, it is possible to save 25 to 35 per cent of the fuel, depending on the type of house, fuel burned and other factors. The investment is small. One manufacturer estimates that complete attic coverage of an average five-room house can be obtained at a cost of less than $700, if the owner does the job himself. The investment pays off not only in greater fuel savings but improved comfort.

Next on the investment list are storm windows and doors, since single glass windows and panel doors are another high source of heat loss. Storm sash must be fitted snugly to minimize air leaks around the edges. A third precaution is weatherstripping. In older homes, cracks develop around the sides of windows and doors due to constant opening and closing, along with shrinkage from natural aging of the wood. Weatherstripping, properly applied, can greatly reduce heat loss at this source.

Th fourth precaution is caulking to close minute openings in older homes caused by shrinkage or warpage of the wood trim or casing around windows and doors. Application of a caulking compound will greatly reduce this source of heat loss.

March and April are good months for planting all kinds of evergreens, whether broad-leafed or those with needle foliage. Keep them well watered.

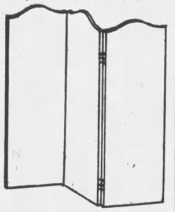
THREE-FOLD SCREEN

The folding screen in the illustration is made of plywood over framework of lumber. Side frame pieces, bottoms and braces are 1 by 2-inch lumber, respectively 57¾" and 12¾" long.

The top piece can be cut to shape with a scroll or jig saw.

Before assembling the frame work, cut square ¼" vent slots in the center braces and bottoms to prevent warping caused by changes in humidity. After the lumber is cut, check the lengths to make sure there is no variation. Nail and glue the frames together, checking to see that all parts are square.



Then lay the frames of the ¼" plywood and trace the outline. Cut the plywood slightly larger than the outlines so that it can be trimmed to exact size when the units are completed. Glue and brad the panels to the frames. When the glue has set thoroughly, trim the panels to size with a plane and file.

Hinge the finished panels with double-acting hinges or leather straps if you cannot obtain metal ones. Decorate the panels with paint, enamel, lacquer, varnish or wallpaper.

Spraying with lime-sulphur, or with miscible oils, is the most effective method of eradicating scale insects from fruit trees and shrubs. Applications should be made on warmish days, but while the trees or shrubs are still dormant.

Long Research Back Of Asbestos Roof Shingles

Asbestos-cement roofing shingles, which have come into popular use for urban homes, farm houses and farm service buildings, were developed around the turn of the century after intensive research for roofing material that would be fire-safe, strong and durable, yet not excessively heavy. These qualities were combined successfully by reinforcing Portland cement with asbestos fibers.

COLOR URGED IN KITCHENS

Prefinished Wall Panels Add Possibilities For Designers

The new 1953 kitchen appliances in color finishes combined with the new prefinished wallpanels in matching or contrasting colors open up exciting new possibilities for the designers and users of home kitchens.

No longer is it necessary to put up with the monotony of the all-white kitchen for the housewife today has a wide variety of choice in colors for her range and refrigerator, her walls and ceilings as well as her curtains and kitchen accessories. The result will be more attractive kitchens that are easier on the eyes of the woman of the house who spends long hours each day in her kitchen.

Prefinished wallpanels which come in a wide variety of colors and patterns make it possible to apply to the walls and ceiling a beautiful and durable surface that is as easy to clean as the surface of the refrigerator or the range.

In this do-it-yourself age, prefinished wallpanels provide the answer for the man who is reasonably handy with simple carpenter tools. For by the use of this comparatively new flexible material that is cemented directly to almost any dry wall or ceiling surface, the home handyman can do a professional remodeling job in his home kitchen, bathroom, recreation room, den, hallway, children's room, laundry, or utility room.

Prefinished wallpaneling is the same hardboard, baked enamel finished material that is widely used for walls and ceilings in stores, hospitals, motels, offices, reception rooms, corridors and other areas in commercial, industrial and institutional structures. This material is readily available through most building material dealers from one end of the country to the other.

Satin Finish Can Be Given Shellac

Here's an effective, simple method of applying smooth, satiny finish on pressed wood and similar materials. Mix one part clear shellac in a bottle with three parts of wood alcohol and shake thoroughly. Pour some on a soft, lint-free cloth and rub item to be shellacked with a vigorous, circular motion. The coating will dry in a few moments, after which the operation shopld be repeated five times. There is no need to sand between coats as in applying shallac with a brush.

This is an ideal method of protecting designs stenciled or painted on such pressed wood items as drinking glass coasters, wall plaques, buttons, picture frames, card table tops, shelf edging, table servers, checkerboard, signs, letter file, photo statuettes, fireplace closures and the like.

Migala Rug Co. Plans Open House

Pictured above is the new carpet department of the Migala Rug company, 206 Main st., showing large racks lined against the side walls. The firm, which is celebrating its 12th anniversary in St. Joseph, will hold a grand opening of its new carpet department Monday and Tuesday. Refreshments will be served daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. (Herald-Press photo.)

The Migala Rug company of 206 Main st., which is celebrating its 12th birthday, will hold a grand opening of its new carpet department this coming Monday and Tuesday, it was announced by Stephen Migala, owner of the firm.

During the two-day celebration refreshments will be served daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The rug firm, which has been in business since 1921, and in St. Joseph since 1941, is the exclusive distributor of Gulistan carpeting in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties, and also handles the Downs Wilton carpet, Roxbury and Philadelphia carpeting lines.

Miss Carole Winslow, director of the Gulistan home decorating service and author of the booklet, "How Carpet Makes Your Decorating Dreams Come True, will be present Monday and Tuesday to show the line of carpeting of her firm.

The Migala Rug company, which is housed in an "L" shaped building, with entrances on Main st. and Ship st., has done considerable remodeling. The new carpet department, located at the Main st. entrance, now has large display racks lined against two walls. This section is for the sole display of carpeting.

At the Ship st. entrance, the remodeling has created a beter display for asphalt tile, wall tile and linoleum.

Migala, the store's owner, has announced the appointment of Don Gray, formerly of Detroit, as general manager. He recently arrived from Detroit where he had been in the carpet and linoleum business for the past 27 years.

The staff of the firm, besides the owner and the general manager, includes Ted Migala, bookkeeper; Martin Migala, who handles contract work; and Bob Rody and Ted Rowe, salesmen.

Growing Of Plants From Stem And Lead Cuttings Possible

ANN ARBOR — Growing plants from stem and leaf cuttings can become an absorbing indoor pastime, according to Felix G. Gustafson, professor of botany at the University of Michigan.

Some plants which may be propagated by cuttings are coleus, geranium, philodendron, poinsettias, begonias, sanseveria and peperomia.

Chances are that your home-raised specimens will take a place in your affections not to be won by "intruders" from greenhouses and florist shops. You will also enjoy giving surplus stock to your friends and exchanging slips and cuttings with them.

In propagation by slips, the stem should be cut just below a node (the place where the leaf joins the stem). The cutting should be one to two inches long and should usually be taken from the end of a new shoot when the plant is in active growth, although in some plants older stems are just as good. Remove all buds and leaves except one or two at the apex. Remember that plants lose water through their leaves and that cuttings have no roots. Therefore, the leaf surface should be reduced to a minimum while a plant is producing roots.

Many cuttings may be rooted in clear water, but a propagating box filled with sand, vermiculite or peat moss is better. Leaves of the cutting should be just above the surface. Pack a layer of sphagnum moss in the bottom for better aeration. Air is very important for the growth of roots.

A sheet of glass avross the top will retain the needed moisture and heat, since the rooting medium should be kept damp at all times. For watering, place the box in a tray of water, or water from the top. The temperature of an average room should be satisfactory. The box should be kept in the light, but not in direct sunlight.

When roots about one-half inch long have formed, remove plants from the propagating box to a pot. The potting soil should be rich and porous. To obtain this combination, the usual mixture is composed of sand, leaf-mold and ordinary garden soil. The proportions used should depend on the quality of the soil (if heavy clay, add more sand; if light sandy soil, less sand and more leaf-mold).

Leaf cuttings may be taken from such fleshy-leaved plants as begonia, gloxinia, saintpaulia, (African violet), peperomia and English ivy. The Rex begonia leaf may be cut across the veins near the base, then placed flat on the sand in a propagating box. New plants will grow from the cut.

Peperomia and English ivy leaves may be planted with part of the stem attached.

African violets are easily grown from leaf cuttings. Cut the fully developed leaves, each with stem attached. Bury the stem and basal part of the leaf blade in the propagating box. when roots are formed, cuttings may be placed in small containers in the potting mixture until they are large enough for bigger pots.

'Keep Off The Grass' Signs Easily Made In Home Workshop

"Keep Off the Grass" signs are handy to have ready for the spring growing season. Permanent, attractive ones that will be serviceable year after year can be made in the home workshop. Cut out some clever shapes from tempered presdwood, using a coping or keyhole saw.

Here are some ideas which may make passersby chuckle as they keep off a newly-seeded lawn:

An Englishman with monocle. After cutting out the figure, use a paint primer and then decorate it. Leave a rectangular spot for: "I say! Kindly omit treading on the greensward!"

A Scotchman in a kilt could bear this message: "Please save the grass!"

A uniformed nurse would get a smile with: We're trying to nurse it along. Please help the patient!"

Lawn signs of this sort should be nailed on a sharp stick, which incidentally should be painted too. Plywood can be used similarly for flower and vegetable gardens for making decorative figures or row markers.

Asbestos-Cement Siding Offer Choice Of Colors

Asbestos-cement siding, which requires no painting to preserve it, can be obtained either with a smooth surface or with the surface textured in wood grain or tapered line designs. There is a choice of straight or wavy exposed butt lines in shingles of both styles. Textured shingles also come with a staggered butt line.

Try sowing larkspur, snapdragon and petunia on frozen ground as you would grass seed. Freezing and thawing will bury the seed.

Don't start seed indoors of plants that develop quickly and can't be set out when they are large enough. Plants held back are stunted.

DAILY EXCEPT SUNDAY

POLIO CAMPAIGN

Robert C. Upton and his co-workers in the 1953 March of Dimes drive have every reason to feel happy and proud in the results of their financial labors against the dreaded polio.

Not only did they hit an all-time high quota of $50,000 for the county, but went $13,000 beyond the goal.

The accomplishment puts the local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis out of debts to its national society, and also provides a cushion for local treatments unless the epidemic jumps beyond the terrifying bounds that it hit last year.

Such work can only be done through good management at the top level and the cooperation of workers in the ranks who know what they are doing and why they are doing it.

Somebody once remarked that "comparisons are odious," but we can't see the harm in placing Berrien's record against what Kalamazoo did this year.

Kalamazoo has about 11,000 more people than does Berrien's 115,000 population, and commercial statistics put it considerably ahead of our community. Kalamazoo raised $40,000 this year and thought they did a wonderful job. Berrien, by that token, is in the Hollywood bracket of "super colossal—no less."

EROSION AND TAXES

Lake Michigan property owners are watching that dread day, March 15th, with more than passing interest this year.

Reports from Washington are conflicting, as usual, but it does look as though a property owner whose bank or even his house has been damaged by 1952's high water and storms may be in for some tax relief.

The income tax laws allow a taxpayer to deduct from his gross income any losses caused by fire, flood or other catastrophes which have not been paid for by insurance or other means of reimbursement.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has consistently disallowed claims caused by so called "normal" erosion. This is the rise and fall in water levels or change in currents that gradually eat away a bank in one spot and build it up some place else. The ruling follows the general property law that a land owner adjacent to a lake or river holds his property lines subject to those gradual changes.

But where Mother Nature goes on a rampage as she did over Lake Michigan last year, the boundary changes are so swift and so violent that those erosion losses may become a deductible item for tax purposes.

The Internal Revenue people are hesitant to make a blanket rule in this case and it is possible that congress may change the law itself to give relief.

We're not tax experts, but do suggest that if your house or beach has been undermined by the lake that you see a tax consultant on the matter before filing your 1952 return.

SELF HELP

Everyone is fascinated by a success story. Making good against odds is inspiring. America became a great nation because it was a land of opportunity and the right of the individual to make the most of those opportunities was protected.

Buchanan, Georgia, after World War II was about as near destitute as any community could be and still not become a ghost town. With a population of about 500 it lay in a declining cotton area. Young folks were leaving to seek work elsewhere.

At the end of the war a couple of veterans who lived in Buchanan decided to do something about the situation. They enlisted the support of townspeople to build a factory. Then they interested a large shirt manufacturing concern in leasing the factory. The result was the town literally lifted itself by its boot straps out of oblivion.

Hundreds of local people were employed in the factory. Within a year there was money to pave the court house square, build a new Baptist church, a movie theater, a new drug store and a dry cleaning plant. A baseball club was formed. Young people stopped migrating to cities.

The story of Buchanan, Georgia is significant for two reasons. First it shows that this country is still a land of opportunity, and secondly it shows that local problems can be solved without subsidies or handouts. We need more Buchanans.

SHOULD AGE LIMIT BE LOWERED SO YOUTH VOTES AT EIGHTEEN?

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

In Georgia youths can vote at eighteen. In all other states they can't vote till they are twenty-one. Last November, Oklahoma and South Dakota voted on the proposal to reduce the voting age to eighteen. In both states it was turned down.

Yet in these and every other state, the armed forces welcome enlistments by youths eighteen. For some years those who are twenty have been inducted and we hear that some nineteen-year-olds are soon to be called to the colors.

Best Fighting Men

You and I hear and read from leaders in the armed forces that youths from eighteen to twenty-one make the very best fighting men. How strange that these young men entrusted with such a great responsibility in our national defense are not considered mature enough to help choose those who are to govern the local community, state and nation.

About sixteen years ago I proposed in an informal discussion with a group of high school principals and teachers in a far-western city that the age of voting be lowered to eighteen years of age. The late Judge Ben Lindsay had publicly proposed this idea some months earlier. The proposition was met by those school men with almost unanimous resistance. They argued that a youth of eighteen lacked sufficient wisdom and judgment to assume such responsible participation in citizenship.

Yet most of these high school teachers were developing rather advanced programs of citizenship in their respective schools, including student councils. Some of these teachers bragged about the maturity of high school students participating in their school government.

You and I have sat in the midst of youths in high school deliberating on problems of living together and working together there for the common welfare of the group. Although some high schools don't yet have student councils or any other workable form of student participation in school government, the majority of them do.

In the modern high school most students get practical courses in civil government and active citizenship, many of them knowing more about the candidates and issues before election time than their parents. By the time they are ready to graduate from high school they are all filled with ideas and ideals about good government and how to bring it about.

May Lose Ideals

But except in Georgia, they must wait two, three or four years before they are allowed to help choose the men and women who are to govern them and their older neighbors. By the time these youths are old enough to vote, many of them have lost their fine ideals and enthusiasm, even may have grown cynical. Stirring up enthusiasm for some ideal or enterprise without providing opportunity to act can be emotionally and morally harmful.

Though you and I are sometimes puzzled over the indifference of educational leaders to this matter, I found it refreshing to read in my home paper that the Pennsylvania State Education association at its recent annual meeting voted approval of reduction of the voting age to eighteen.

If the ice cake had broken up the boys would have been drowned in the freezing cold water. The coast guard sighted the sextet far out in the lake where they were waving their arms frantically for help. The coast guard dragged a row boat two and a half miles before they were able to launch the boat.

YOUR HEALTH

TO AID KIDNEY STONE Attacks

Many doctors believe that kidney stones can be prevented by bolstering the body's natural defenses against them. Drugs are being used to do just this, by restoring the normal substances found in normal urine.

Doctors are not sure just what causes kidney stones. They think that kidney infections sometimes lead to the formation of stones, or that an extra high amount of salts in the urine may cause them.

Vitamin A Deficiency

It has been shown that a tumor in one of the parathyroid glands may be another cause. The parathyroids, in the neck, are important in distributing the right amount of calcium in the body. Then again, a vitamin A deficiency may give a person a tendency toward chronic attacks of kidney stones.

Once a kidney stone forms, it may increase any infection present, and cut off the normal flow of urine. This leads to a condition known as hydronephrosis, which may destroy the kidney.

Kidney stones often cause a severe stabbing pain in the back, which is almost unbearable. The pain may spread down into the groin or around the abdomen.

Healthy urine contains certain substances that have a protective action, and prevent kidney stones from growing. These substances are in the form of colloids, which are suspensions of very tiny particles of chemical substances, such as we see in milk.

People with kidney stones are thought to lack the proper amount of these colloids in the urine. However, a drug known as hyaluronidase can be used to increase the amount of colloids to normal. The drug is mixed with a weak salt solution and injected into the tissues under the skin.

Recently, this drug was used in twenty persons who had attacks of kidney stones in both kidneys. These people had suffered from stones for years, and no previous treatment had proved effective in decreasing the number formed.

Some of these persons have been taking the injections over a year with no sign of kidney stones. Where there were large stones present, they did not increase in size under this form of treatment.

PONIES PLAY GREAT BALL TO NOSE OUT IRISH

St. Joseph's Lead Most Of Way To Win 59-58

By KEN DULO

Snorting out of the starting gate, the St. Joseph Ponies galloped away ahead of St. John's at the first turn, kept their lead at the second bend, then overcoming a serious Irish threat in the stretch, raced across the finish line by a nose, to win 59-58, in the St. John's gym last night.

Thus by playing one of their "top-notchest" tills of the season, Jerry Ramsberger's bunch settled themselves into third place in the Little Eight conference on a 7-5 record and finished 9-7 for the season. The Irish ended their regular season activity in fourth loop spot (6-6) and 8-9 for the year.

Now if the Ponies can get by Lawrence in the semi-finals of the St. Joseph class D tourney next week, they are almost a certain cinch to meet the Irish again in the meet finals, March 7, since George Gaunder's lads are a heavy favorite to knock off Covert in the other semi-final. And since the Ponies were hit by their cross-town rivals in January, 47-37, that would be the deciding bout.

Last night's ball game was a feast for those fans who like their games set to fast action and rapid fire scoring. Let's pick it up at the start of the fourth quarter with the tally reading 43-all.

First Irish Lead

Forty seconds had passed when sub Jack LoPresti tucked in a rebound to give the home club its first lead of the night except for a momentary 3-2 advantage in the early minutes.

Handsome Rex Nower boosted the ante to 46-43 on a gift and LoPresti followed suit for one more point's lead. Quickly, though, St. Joseph's Loren Krieger plopped in a bucket and Dave Spear tied it again with 6:14 remaining.

Then Bernie Lochner, who had been making Ramsberger grit his teeth all the second half with his beautiful two-handed set shots, looped in a two-pointer in just that fashion. Jim White hit one of his few free throws of the evening but Ken Thar equaled it.

White, a picture of composure despite the stunning din all around, connected from the side for a 50-50 deadlock, with 5:10 left. That retaliated with two straight by Frank Paukowits threw one in from outside and it was 52-all.

A little less than a minute later Paukowits hit another after White had missed a sure set-up. Spear sank a free effort, and the Ponies had saddled themselves into a 55-52 topping. Bert Thar, who spearheaded St. John's with 16 tallies, pushed in a layup on the break to put his club only one behind.

Go Into Stall

Scarcely more than 60 seconds remained and the Ponies went into a stall. Thar fouled White soon after and Jim arched her in (56-54). The eventual winners grabbed the ball after a jump and Lochner barely touched White on the head; but it was called a foul and the big Pony center potted this also with 0:41 left.

Bob Steltman fouled Dick Kimball nine seconds later and the Irish pivoteer dropped in both (57-56, Ponies). But Steltman became a hero right away as he drifted behind the desperate Irish defense and sank one up. Thar then looped in one from near the free throw circle in the dying seconds but the buzzer sounded before any more Irish dirty work could be committed.

If the tilt had turned out any other way, Pony rooters would have been well within their rights to say "What a dirty shame!"

For few teams have been as steaming as the Ramsberger outfit was in the first period. Taking the lead at 4-3 on Steltman's push shot the visitors did just about everything right. Thanks to some great shooting by Spear, who hit five out-court field goals, and fine passing among other things, the Ponies kept ahead to lead 25-15.

Gaunder's club was cold for the number of shots it took, but it got a little better in the second stanza in which scoring for both clubs decreased, 12-9, in favor of the winners.

Used Zone

St. John's used a zone in the first eight minutes but then switched to a man-to-man. St. Joseph's stayed in front till intermission, at two different times leading by 10 points. Krieger fired one in for a 32-24 Pony advantage at half-time.

Tom Osborn, who had to leave the game in the third quarter after suffering a misplaced cartilage in his left knee, opened the stanza with a tip-in, and the Horses started to build up their biggest leads of the night.

Although Osborn was the only one hitting consistently in the period, the advantage mounted to 11 points several times, 12 once and 14 with a little over five minutes to go.

At this 41-27 juncture, the Gaundermen started to play ball. Lochner followed a free shot with a two-hander. Kimball sank two free attempts. Lochner flipped in still another long try, and did it yet again after teammate Thar had authored a gift. White got a one-pointer for the only Pony scoring during their opponents' rush except for one other by Paukowits. That made it only 43-37 Ponies, and the Irish erased the six-point deficit by the quarter's end on field goals by LoPresti, Lochner (yes, another two-hander), and Thar.

Six Ponies Play

Six Ponies were used, with only Bill White remaining on the bench, and all helped balance the scoring. Spear was tops with 14. Osborn got 12, Paukowits 10, White 9, Steltman eight and Krieger six.

White did some fine rebounding, but while playing out of the pivot, most of the time on coach's orders, got only two fielders. But for his unusual inaccuracy at the free shot line (he hit only five of 17), the Ponies wouldn't have had so much pressure on.

Next to Thar for St. John's was Lochner with 15, and Kimball with 13. The club was probably handicapped by the scarce playing of regular guard Jack Lybrook whose sprained ankle didn't permit too much freedom.

Irish field goal percentage was .378 on 20 of 53. From nine of 29 in the first half, they upped it to 11 for 24 in the second. No one kept Pony shots.

St. John's copped the second team prelim, 37-30, as Mike Gagliardo hit nine. For the Pony reserves, Mike Howard had 11 and Jim Tiefenbach ten.

COACH'S SON CAPTURES TILT

Bob Decker's Late Free Shot Gives Gaels Win, 63-62

GALIEN, Feb. 28—Guard Bob Decker, son of Galien's cage coach, stepped to the free throw line with four seconds to play and sank a free throw as the Gaels nipped the New Buffalo Bisons, 63 to 62, here last night in a fifth-place Twin Five conference play-off match.

Bob Luther, brilliant forward, blasted in 12 baskets and three free throws for 27 points to lead the winners. He was ably suported by George Wolfe with 16 and Decker with 14.

Other than a very brief appearance by Guard Kevin Olmstead, Coach Decker employed his starters throughout the contest.

New Buffalo, with Joe Buckingham, Jack Kroening and Jerry Neumann hitting the hoop consistently, raced off to a 21 to 11 first quarter lead and maintained a "healthy" 9-point spread at the half, 39 to 28.

With two minutes remaining in the third period Galien finally caught up, 44 to 44, on Luther's basket. The Gaels held on to a slim 50-49 margin at the three-quarter mark.

The two quintets traded point for point through most of the hectic final heat and with 1:14 to go the score was knotted at 60-all. Luther put the winners ahead with a minute to go, 62-60, and Kissman evened this up 12 seconds later.

There were four seconds to go when Decker was fouled while driving in for a shot. He missed the first one and then sank the second and it was all over.

The Galien reserves, although trailing at one point, 21 to 4, rallied to take the opener, 43 to 41. Marsh was high with 12 points, while Blazek scored 11 for the losers.

Coloma Racks Hapless Cass

CASSOPOLIS, Feb. 28—The Coloma Comets snapped a three game losing streak in a big way here last night as they exploded for the highest point total in the Little Eight this season, trouning the winless Cassopolis Rangers, 102-77.

The Comets racked up 20 points in every quarter but the last when they hit 19. Their top period was the second with 29. They fired 54-27 in both the first and third frames.

The Ranger's reserves gave promise for better things next year with a 65-44 win over the Comets.

Named As Grid Coach

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 28—(AP)—Bill Dellastatious, former Missouri halfback, was named football coach at Springfield State.

PLOTTING EVIL FOR CUBS— The St. Joseph Bears' two leading scorers, Nate Duncan (left) and Ted Zuppke, take time out from a stiff practice session and meditate strongly on what they'll do to an invading band of Kalamazoo State high Cubs on the St. Joe floor tonight. Duncan, a junior, comes No. 1 in the Bruin tallying parade with his 70 field goals and 95 free throws for 235 points, an average of 15.7. Zuppke, a senior, who will be performing for the last time before the home fans, is No. 2 on 68 fielders and 68 charities for 204 points, a 13.6 average. (Herald-Press photo.)

Flint Club Clips Indians For Michigan JC Crown

FLINT, Feb. 28—Flint's Bears neutralized Benton Harbor Junior college's ace scoring weapon and went on to win the Michigan J. C. conference championship, 78-67, here last night.

The Indians stayed with Flint for the first quarter which ended in a 16-16 tie, but the Bears then threw their defensive cordon around Woods and went on to a 32-26 advantage at the half.

Flint assured itself of a second straight conference championship by defeating the Indians. The Bears finished the race with a 14-1 record, and Benton Harbor marks time in second place with 11-2. Grand Rapids, third place club, can tie the Indians for runner-up by whipping Muskegon in its final game next week.

The Bears' only loss in conference play came at the hands of the Indians, 72-71, in overtime Dec. 19. Last night's setback snapped a 10-game Benton Harbor winning streak and set their season record at 16-4.

Flint featured a balanced scoring attack four players 10 points or more. Forward Hal Rainey topped the list with 16 followed by guard Nick Pappadakis with 14.

Al Schaffer and Les Butgereit joined Woods as leaders of Benton Harbor's offense each with 10.

Woods hit three baskets in the first quarter to keep his team in the game, but Flint countered in the second with a beef trust that put three men on the Harbor ace who had tallied 122 points in the previous five games.

Flint's three man screen helped the Bears tally 27 points in the third period as they showed championship form and built up a commanding 59-42 margin.

Don Rennhack helped spark the Indians to 25 points in the fourth quarter as the rally came to late to turn the tide.

Bentin Harbor didn't die for lack of support. About 40 rooters followed the team for the game at Whittier junior high school gym.

Bangor Drops Overtime Tilt

DOWAGIAC, Feb. 28 — Bangor sent simultaneous shivers down the spines of opposing teams in the class C tournament at St. Joseph and the Dowagiac Chiefs here last night before bowing, 51-49, in overtime to the Big Four quintet.

It was a near miraculous stand fo the downtrodden Vikings who had won only once in 15 previous starts. Dowagiac entered the game with a glittering 11-4 record.

Bangor's Jimmy Smith put the fray into overtime by sinking a basket to knot the score at 49-49 with 16 seconds remaining. In the three-minute extra period, Dowagiac's Milt Lingle immediately drove in to score for the only basket as the Chiefs managed to protect their slim-two point advantage.

It was point-for-point all the way with Bangor ahead at the half, 20-19.

Bangor won the reserve game in another thriller, 55-54.

Berrien Springs Sends Eau Claire To Defeat In Playoff By 67-35

EAU CLAIRE, Feb. 28—The Berrien Springs Shamrocks, after a slow start, picked up steam in the second quarter and then raced off to a 67 to 35 triumph over the Eau Claire Beavers in a ninth-place Twin Five conference playoff game here last night.

Eau Claire took a momentary 2-0 lead on John Bailey's basket and it was only 7-6 in Berrien's favor midway through the period. The Shamrocks then spurted to lead, 14 to 7, at the end of eight minutes.

Coach Barney Chance's visitors then poured in 22 points and that decided the issue as the Berrienites led by 36 to 13 at the half. Berrien Springs took the second half scoring margin, 31 to 22.

The Berrien Springs reserves romped to a 98 to 17 triumph in the preliminary as Clark and Bright each piled in 20 points.

Allegan Five Upsets Cubs In Overtime

KALAMAZOO, Feb. 28—Allegan's Tigers roared into a minor upset here last night to dump the Kal State high Cubs, 50-44, in overtime and grab a share of the Wolverine conference championship.

The visitors broke loose for nine points to the Cubs' three in the extra period after the regulation tilt ended 41-all. Roger Smith put Allegan ahead 43-41 on a jump shot but a free shot by John Warfield and two by Eddie Sutton gave the home team temporary life, 44-43.

Roger Newman, one of the conference's and area's most prolific scorers, then went in for an underhanded lay-up with a minute left to put the Tigers back ahead, 45-44, and they added five more points for good measure while holding Kal scoreless.

The Cubs, playing their first of two games in two nights, started out with a rush, leading 15-9 at the quarter and 25-22 at half. But Allegan, with Newman hitting six of them, tallied 10 points to only four for Kal in the third period, and went in the van, 32-29.

State high had enough left to tie three times in the final period, but were trailing 41-38 with 1:17 left. Warfield then sank a charity and with 11 seconds left, went in for a layup. He missed the bucket completely but it was allowed because an Allegan player had his hand in the net.

As a result, the clubs wound up tied for the loop lead, each with 9-1 marks. Kal State won the first tilt between the clubs and they will meet again in the district tourney next week.

OAKERS, CARDS MEET TONIGHT

Eau Claire Go Is For Twin Five Loop Title

EAU CLAIRE, Feb. 28—This is the big one for Stevensville's Cardinals and Three Oaks' Oakers.

They'll meet on the big Eau Claire court at 8:30 to decide the championship of the Twin Five conference. WHFB-FM will broadcast the outing.

Both fives have identical records except for the Twin Five holiday tournament which the Oakers copped with three straight wins. Thus Ziggy Belzowski's lads boast a 15-3 season compared to the Cardinals' 12-3.

Stevensville and Edwardsburg tied for the Eastern division title on 7-1 records but the Cards were given the playoff berth for top spot because of a better free throw-personal foul ratio. Three Oaks and New Troy likewise were stymied for the Western division crown with 6-2 marks. Here, however, the Oakers were awarded the bunting because they had beaten New Troy two of three times during the regular season.

Only clubs to lick the Cards this year have been Edwardsburg, New Buffalo, and Bridgman, while Three Oaks' failures were to Stevensville in the teams' only meeting thus far, New Troy, and Berrien Springs.

Three Oaks has been among the top ten clubs in Class D state polls all season while the Cards were among the leaders in earlier "D" ratings.

Probable starters for Belzowski's bunch are Al Buller and Nelson Lintner at forwards, big Don Martus at center, and brothers Ron and Dick Schmidt at guards. For Stevensville, it will probably be Joe Nozicka and John Florian at the front spots, Bob Nozicka at center, and Bob Bartz and Frank Myers at guards.

Barker Hits 32 To Defeat Decatur Five

DECATUR, Feb. 28—A hard luck Decatur team dropped another squeaker on its home court last night as Hartford took advantage of free throws for a 55-51 victory. The Raiders dropped and earlier, 48-46, decision to Watervliet on their own hardwood.

The finale for both teams gives Hartford a fine over all mark of 11-3, while the Raiders were less fortunate with a 5-10 ledger. Hartford finished in the runnerup slot in the Little Eight conference with a 9-3 record. Decatur had to settle for sixth spot.

Decatur grabbed a 19-16 first period lead but a strong rally put the Indians ahead at halftime, 37-27. Decatur broke loose with 2 points in the third frame to regain command, 47-43. However, the Raiders could manage only four points in the final period.

Decatur copped the reserve game, 45-38. Bob Southworth topped the winners with 14 points. Gifford tossed in 11 for the Indians.

Haack To Start Senior Ron Knuth At One Guard Slot

TIME: 8 p. m.
PLACE: St. Joseph high gym.
RESERVES: 6:30.
RECORDS: Bears (8-7); Cubs (9-5).

OFFICIALS: Varsity — Martin Tretheway, Stevensville; Carl Fiore, Stevensville; Reserves — Bill Laukas, St. Joseph, Norman Stickney, St. Joseph.

It's always good to close out your season with a win, and if the St Joseph Bears have anything to say about it, they'll do it tonight against the Kalamazoo State High Cubs on the local floor.

Last time the Bruins tackled their Celery City foes, they were riding high, wide and handsome among the state's better Class B teams. Of course now it's a much different story, after the five-game losing streak came about, and Kalis boasting a better record than its hosts.

Arden Deter's team heads into the Bears' cave tonight boasting a 9-6 record and a Wolverine conference tie for first place. The club was beaten by prior runnerup Allegan, 50-44, in overtime last night, giving both teams a 9-1 final standing.

Besides losing to St. Joe in the first engagement in January, 68-48, the Kazoo fellows have dropped decisions to Holland Christian, Berrien Springs, Hastings, and Dowagiac. Wins have come over South Haven, Portage, Plainwell, Allegan, and Otsego-all twice except Allegan. So it can be seen that in their own league the Cubs are a power while they have yet to win outside it.

Could Fall To .500

The Bears, on the other hand, have captured five of their total eight successes against non-league opposition while winning three of six in the Big Four conference. A loss tonight would push them down into an 8-8 .500 season.

Ray Haack will be sending a new face into the starting lineup-that of senior Ron Knuth. The latter has been used sparingly on the varsity, namely in eight games, and has tallied four points.

Knuth will be a replacement of sorts for Wayne Shell who is handicapped by a sprained ankle sustained in practice. Haack 'froze' the member in Tuesday's South Haven tilt, and Shell didn't seem too handicapped. He should get in later tonight.

The rest of the "Bar" lineup has old reliables Bob Ellis and Rick Nelson at forwards, Ted Zuppke at center, and Nate Duncan at the second guard slot.

Five Are Seniors

Zuppke, Knuth, and Shell join Dick Marquardt and Jerry Laure in their last game before home court fans, although they'll all be ready to go against Niles at Eau Claire Wednesday in the district tourney and further if they clip the Vikes.

In preparation for Kazoo and tourney outings, the Bears practiced Monday at Eau Claire and scrimmaged St. John's Wednesday.

Deteret is throwing the same five, at least in name, against the Bears tonight, as in the January fray. Eddie Sutton, a fine ball player, will go at forward with Al Wise. Al Howard is to open at center and Don Gill and Tom Johnson at guards.

Sure to get in are Bill McConachie and John Warfield, front-line subs. Other Cubs who toiled against the Bears last time are Bruigan, Dick DeFreese, and Don Neal.

Ed Burke of Mishawaka, who was originally slated to work the varsity tilt with Martin Tretheway, has been replaced by Carl Fiore. Burke was needed in an Indiana tourney. Reserve officials will be Bill Laukas and Norm Stickney, both local men.

Benton Harbor Tigers Top Niles Club, 64-53

NILES, Feb. 28—Substitutes who rode the bench most of the season won their battle stars here last night by steering Benton Harbor high to a 64-53 decision over Niles as the Tigers completed their first winning campaign in three years.

The Tigers were perilously close to taking a third straight setback from the South Berrien team and finishing below the .500 mark when they wore down Niles late in the third period on the floor play of reserves Ron Barchett, Craig Dasse, and Vern Blakeman.

Regulars Don Arend, and Bill Grall also had a big role in the Tigers' eighth victory against seven defeats but it was the clutch work of the subs that wiped out a lead Niles had held for nearly three-fourths of the game and decided the issue.

Benton Harbor's late rally was a hard blow to loyal Niles followers who had hopes of witnessing the Vikings win their first game on home hardwoods.

Niles, accustomed to the rough jolts of Southwestern conference warfare, seemed to bide their time and the attrition tactics combined with an aggressive pressing defense caused the Vikes to collapse after they had enjoyed a nine point lead, 38-29 early in the third period.

Benton Harbor didn't take charge on the scoreboard until only 4:05 seconds were left to play and Don Arend hit a lay-in to make it 50-48. By that time, the Tigers' force was irresistable and the Vikings submitted meekly.

Joe Winger, 6-foot 2-inch center, son of the Niles school superintendent, was the reason the home troops set the pace for so long. He tallied 11 markers in the second quarter when Niles pulled away and was the leading scorer with a 20-point output for the game.

Action picked up in the second quarter as Niles was able to pull a few fast breaks, set up by the ball-hawking of guards Bill Neesley and Don Maddox, and Winger pitched in points steadily from the pivot.

Ken Dyer, another reserve to perform well for the Tigers, hit three baskets during the frame to prevent Niles from leading by a bigger margin than its 29-27 advantage at the half.

Dyer opened the third quarter with a free throw and Maddox warmed up with five straight points which combined with a goal by Ron Low indicated the Vikes might win handily. They had their widest lead when Maddox scored again to make it 38-29.

From then on it was down hill for Niles and they escaped from the third quarter with the margin trimmed to 43-42.

NILES, Feb. 28 — Playing without starting center Karl Littke who was benched by the flu, Benton Harbor's junior varsity took a hectic 44-43 setback from the Niles jayvees here last night.

TRUCKS CRASH; $3,500 DAMAGE

Driver Of One Held In Collision Near Niles

NILES, Feb. 28—Two trucks were extensively damaged when they collided at 2:15 a. m. today on M-60 at the intersection of Barron Lake rd. and Pokagon rd. in Howard township, Cass county, one and one-half miles east of Niles.

State police of the Niles post said a truck driven by Charles Bertolozzi, 37, Elmwood Park, Ill., was traveling east on M-60 when he attempted to pass a car in front of him as it turned into a driveway.

As he started to pass, Bertolozzi told police, he saw a truck driven by Augustus Bisbee, 42, Hartford, approaching, and did not have a chance to get back on the right side of the road. Bertolozzi then tried to get out of the way of the oncoming truck by going into a field on the left side of the road. He was not able to get off the highway in time and the right rear of his truck was struck by the one driven by Bisbee.

Bisbee's truck, which is owned by the Consolidated Freight lines, sustained $2,000 damage and Bertolozzi's truck, owned by the Hennipin Freight lines, was damaged to the extent of $1,500, according to police.

State police gave Bertolozzi a summons for failure to keep to the right.

NILES, Feb. 28—Jack Lightfoot, 51, Niles, damaged his car to the extent of $50 at 4:50 p. m. Friday when he tried to avoid a dog on M-60, three miles east of Galien. Instead, he struck and killed the dog and lightly sideswiped an approaching car.

State police of the Niles post said Lightfoot was traveling east on M-60 when he swerved to the right in an attempt to miss the dog. However, he hit the animal. When he tried to pull back onto the highway his car started weaving. He sideswiped an approaching car, which did not stop, police reported.

Back 'Kink' Produces Weird Bowling Score

A "kink in the back" kept Steve Staubach of the Maintenance No. 5 team in the Whirlpool Office league from running up a really good series in last night's competition.

The Benton Harbor kegler opened with a 221 game, slipped to an unbelievable 86 and then climbed back up to a 236 for a still good 543 total.

Stubach explains the weird action to his skidding near the end of the first tilt and "slipping a kink in the side of my back." He said he was going along just fine in the opening game with "six or seven" straight strikes until the misfortune. "Then in the second game I couldn't control my ball," he explains.

After a trip to the washroom when his back "sort of straightened up," he came back stronger than ever and again got seven consecutive strikes.

Staubach said he had bowled for many years but never had he turned in so odd a series nor dropped so low in an individual game.

Staubach wound up third in the league as Chuck Wray's 596 and Herm Mischke's 550 bested him. Wray chalked up lines of 160, 219, and 217, as his Service club blanked Salvage, 3-0.

Other good scores: Jim Burrows 535, Gus Enders 531, Bob Gratz and Ed Cubmore 528. Jim Davidson 523, Ivan Peters 519.

Match results: Tools and Operations 3, Engineers 0; Accounting 2, Purchasing 1; Inspection 2, Maintenance 1.

Commercial "B" Ladies

Gertrude Krieger's 537 was top mark. It came on lines of 195, 173, and 169, as her Jean's Dress Shop team edged Mich. Bell Telephone, 2-1.

Other top scores: Thelma Watt 521, Irene Barker 508, Elsie Dutton 505, Beatrice Carley and Ann Spear 470, Gertie Hingst 456.

Match results: Remington Rand 3, Smitty's Beverage 0; Nehi 2, Troost Furniture 1; Bunte's 2, Woodrick's Five Us'ns 1.

GERSONDE ALLEYS

County Lutheran Men

Erwin Lentz rolled a 540 on lines 181, 188 and 171, but his No. Three club lost a 2-1 decision to No. One.

Other top scores: Rev. Harold Zink 534, Adolph Zindler 529, Jim Snyder 523, John Breiting 519, Bob Koern 511, C. Blosser 510, Al Hinkleman 509, Dick Schuhknecht 507.

Match results: No. Four 2, No. Ten 1; No. Eight 2, No. Five 1; No. Twelve 2, No. Seven 1; No. Six 2, No. Eleven 1.

Troubled Farmers Advised To Quit The Soil By 1954

EAST LANSING, Feb. 28 (AP)—Any farmer who has not made money in the past 10 years should get out while he still has a chance to get a job in a factory.

That was the advice given by Dr. Arthur Mauch, Michigan State college agricultural economist, to a conference on migratory farm labor at MSC.

Next year, Dr. Mauch said, "may separate the men from the boys on the farm. A lot of us never had to farm in a depression."

He said he did not think the nation would experience a "violent depression," as in the 1930's, but that a recession was possible.

Prices of farm products are down 15 per cent from the 1951 peak, Dr. Mauch said, 11 per cent in the last 12 months. Meanwhile, farm operating costs have dropped only two per cent, putting the farmer in the middle of a price squeeze.

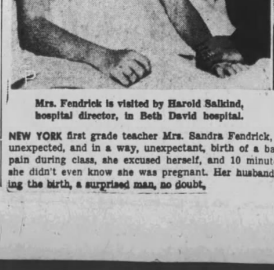
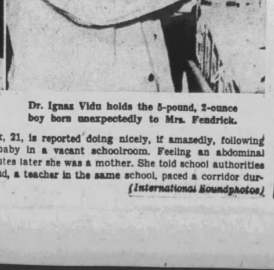
HAS BABY, DIDN'T EVEN KNOW SHE WAS PREGNANT



Mrs. Fendrick is visited by Harold Salkind, hospital director, in Beth David hospital.



Dr. Ignaz Vidu holds the 5-pound, 2-ounce boy born unexpectedly to Mrs. Fendrick.

NEW YORK first grade teacher Mrs. Sandra Fendrick, 21, is reported doing nicely, if amazedly, following unexpected, and in a way, unexpectant, birth of a baby in a vacant schoolroom. Feeling an abdominal pain during class, she excused herself, and 10 minutes later she was a mother. She told school authorities she didn't even know she was pregnant. Her husband, a teacher in the same school, paced a corridor during the birth, a surprised man, no doubt.

Latvian Woman And Family Find Refuge In Berrien County

Riga, in Latvia, on the Baltic sea is a long way from Berrien county, Mich., U. S. A.

It took Vanda Purmalis six torturous years to make the journey. Now, at last, after the turbulent times, she has found safety and a sense of peace.

This community is now her home, and that of her children, Inese, 17, Ilze, 15, and Andris, 12, and of her husband's mother, Pauline Purmalis, 75. These four are Vanda Purmalis' family, kept together by her resolute spirit.

This small, gray-haired woman, so quietly and efficiently doing her work as a children's librarian, has lived through two revolutions, seen her native country stand valiantly for freedom, then seen it gobbled up by a more powerful nation.

She has lived with fear—icy, chilling fear for the safety of her family. And she has known her worst of fears to come true. Her husband, Adolfs Purmalis, an officer of the Latvian army, was snatched away from his family by the Russians and deported in 1941.

Where? Mrs. Purmalis doesn't know. Why? Mrs. Purmalis can't say.

"I don't know why he was deported. None of us knew why anyone was deported. There is no way to tell. The Russians took our people, from every economic class, from the intelligentsia to the lowest level of laborers. Who knows why they did it?"

"I was really not so surprised. It happened every day. I suppose I was a bit surprised that it could happen to my family, that my own husband could be among those deported. You know how it is, you see things happening to others, but you still think it may not happen to you.

"When he actually was taken away, it was for the second time. The first time was around Christmas of 1940. The boys in my husband's unit had two small Christmas trees. They lighted them as was our Latvian custom. The Russians do not care for this sort of thing. They do not believe in such customs. So, their police came and destroyed the trees and took my husband away. They kept him away all night. I did not know if he was coming back that time.

"The situation did not get better. Others in my family were taken away, my brother, others, too, my father, mother, sisters. The day I had been set for the families of the men to be deported also, but that did not come to pass, because by then the German armies had come into our country and the Russians withdrew. But it was not better.

"In 1944 I went with my children and my husband's mother to Czechoslovakia, Bavaria, Germany. We lived in UNRRA camps. We worked. I talked with everyone to see if I could get to America. I wrote to everyone. When you are so desperate, you keep trying. Even in the western part of Germany back in 1944-45 it was so overcrowded. You could not find work to do to support your family. I wrote to a minister in Kalamazoo, who was a Latvian by birth. I wrote to everybody I heard about.

"Finally the John Handy family, in Sodus, saw our pictures and became our sponsors to this country.

"I remember how afraid I was when we landed in New York harbor. I was, after all, only one woman, who could not speak much English, with four people to take care of, too. We had no money. Just our few things, so few. We had been told there would be money for our tickets to Michigan, that we would go to the traveler's aid to get it and make ourselves known. It is a frightening feeling, but nothing is so bad as fear of the Communists.

"The men at the customs office said, 'How do you like New York?' And I thought what a question to ask a woman with no money, no way of talking, with four others to take care of. I said I did not see much of it yet, but that it frightened me. He said 'take it easy.' But I could not accept that expression then. I could not see how anyone could take it easy in all that traffic and all those people."

When the Purmalis family first arrived here in June of 1950, they worked on the Handy farm, in the orchards picking and packing fruit. Later Mrs. Purmalis had a job in the Sodus Fruit exchange.

One day she was at church with Mrs. Handy and was introduced to Mrs. R. Burket, of the Benton Harbor library staff. Mrs. Purmalis had been a librarian in her native country. For years she had worked in the state library at Riga, where they were compiling national literature, and completing the library of all Latvian publications.

Latvia was a young country, had only gained its independence in 1918. Naturally Mrs. Burket was interested in hearing about the library work in that country, so she and Mrs.

MRS. PURMALIS

Purmalis became acquainted. Mrs. Burket brought her to meet Mrs. Theodosia Arnold who was then librarian. They needed help in the children's library. And though Mrs. Purmalis had misgivings because of her language handicap, she got the job.

Mrs. Purmalis, using only the hope, faith and courage of the human spirit, is creating a new pattern for living. She took out her first citizenship papers over two years ago, and is waiting to become a full citizen of the United States.

"It is hard to explain what it means to be free, to Americans. They have always been free. Free to go and come as they please. There are no prying, spying eyes watching, no ears listening. You cannot imagine how it is to live where children are spying on parents, husbands and wives watching each other, suspiciously. To work in fear of your colleagues. That is no way to live. The Latvians were not used to it either. They were used to trust in each other. Then when the Russians came it changed, and you did not know if you were being followed and watched or for what reason.

"I would not wish anyone to go through what we in Latvia did. I think it shall not happen in America. From Europe we had a chance to escape. Now, this is the last free place. I have great faith that it shall stay free."

Eggs And Pineapple, Cabbage And Carrots Are Good Market Buys

More eggs will be coming to market in the next few weeks than at any time this winter, Production of eggs reaches the highest point of the year in early spring, and it's rising now. We won't have as many eggs as a year ago. The U. S. department of agriculture says there were three per cent fewer layers in farm flocks at the start of this month than a year ago. But egg production may not fall quite that much, for production per hen is heavier. The department says hens started off this year by laying an egg every other day during January.

Fresh pineapple, sugared and served in slices or cut into small pieces and served in fruit cups or on ice cream, makes a refreshing dessert for a winter meal. Market news reporters say supplies of fresh pineapples available in the midwest now are increasing. The fruit is coming from Cuba, and it's moderately priced. When you select a pineapple, choose one that has a fresh, clean appearance, is dark orange-yellow, and has the pineapple fragrance. The "eyes" should be flat and almost hollow if the fruit's ripe.

Cabbage and carrots lead the list of good buys in fresh vegetables this week at wholesale fruit and vegetable markets in the midwest. You can make them into a tasty salad by mixing equal parts of grated raw carrots and finely shredded cabbage with salad dressing until the mixture is blended thoroughly. For variety, toss in some ground peanuts. When you serve a cabbage and carrot salad, you're providing a salad that's rich in Vitamin A supplied by the carrots and Vitamin C, provided by the cabbage.

Other salad vegetables you may find plentiful and reasonably priced this week are radishes and spinach and other greens.

Lincoln PTA To Present Panel On School Population Crisis

Lincoln school PTA will present a panel discussion entitled, "What You Have Wanted to Know About Your School," at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the school.

It was announced today that the public is invited to hear the discussion in which the participants will be Dr. A. F. Bliesmer of the St. Joseph school board; Earl H. Place, superintendent of St. Joseph schools; H. B. Veneklasen, elementary school superintendent; Beryl Dominy, county superintendent of schools; Leland Hill, St. Joseph city manager.

Atty. Arthur G. Preston, Jr., will be the panel moderator.

PTA officers announce that some of the questions discussed will be: 1—"Is there a building program? What is it? When will it start? 2—Aren't smaller elementary school units better than larger ones? If so, why are we considering adding on to Jefferson and Lincoln? 3—How do we finance the building of new schools? How are our finances? 4—Are we paying our teachers enough? How do we compare with others? Is there a salary schedule? 5—Why do we continue to take children from Gard and outside school districts when our schools are crowded? 6—Why can't there be a consolidated county high school for county students?

Local Women In INTERESTING CAREERS

Mrs. J. F. Crofton is shown preparing to spray camelia plants in one of the greenhouses at Crofton Gardens. (Herald-Press photo.)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Herald-Press presents another in a series of articles on women engaged in unusual professions in St. Joseph.)

By JOAN LESTER

With SPRING just 'round the bend, Mrs. J. F. Crofton is a very appropriate subject for this "interesting careers" series.

Mrs. Crofton's professional gardening evolved from a hobby she and her husband, the late Dr. J. F. Crofton, started when they moved to the site of Crofton Gardens on Lake Shore dr., in 1924.

When the Croftons took over the present property, there were a lot of narcissi in the ground. Dr. Crofton liked them and added to them constantly.

(Here is as good a place as any to explain, that daffodils and jonquils are really forms of narcissus. The true jonquil is a small cluster-flowered narcissus with rush-like foliage.)

The Croftons added more flowers and now, with about an acre of property, three greenhouses with their own central heating plant, and two small rooms in the house devoted to her work, Mrs. Crofton has an absorbing, interesting job.

Her full-time assistant is Wayne Evans, a graduate in horticulture from the University of Maine. Mr. Evans' wife and a few other people help in extra busy seasons.

At this time Mrs. Crofton and Mr. Evans are moving young delphinium, germaniums, tuberous rooted begonias, Easter lilies, etc., to the cold frames. (Cold frames are outside flower beds with removable glass tops, used to protect seedlings from cold weather.)

In the greenhouse there are hundreds of "flats" with thousands of tiny seedlings growing in them. The seedlings are grown from seed either collected or purchased. They buy seeds because it saves so much time and space in selection of good stock.

Some of the seedlings are petunias, snapdragons and mimosa. Mrs. Crofton was one of the first gardeners in this area to grow camellias, with a specialty in tulips, primroses, begonias and the narcissi family.

She does some cross-breeding of bulb plants. Although cross-breeding is very interesting, it takes a tremendous amount of work and time.

Another current project at Crofton Gardens is the arrangement of what will be called the "Azalea Walk." This will be a path through the gardens, where hardy azaleas will be planted among shrubs.

In the "Violet Room," which has many African violet plants in it, Mrs. Crofton is using fluorescent lighting. The fluorescent lights take the place of sunlight. There is some heat derived, but what is important is that the plants seem to get the benefit of the rays, as they would from the sun.

The University of Ohio has been experimenting with this type of lighting and Mrs. Crofton decided to try it. She uses aluminum foil in place of reflectors, with these lights.

Mrs. Crofton said, "this is an ideal method for people who like inside gardening." She also told us she is happy to recommend things for people to grow in their own gardens.

In addition to planting, selecting the healthy plants, transplanting, spraying and watering the plants, there are many more phases in professional gardening and it's a full-time, slack-suit wearing, job.

Mrs. Crofton told us that she doesn't have a favorite flower. "I love them all and get a thrill out of each one when it blooms," she said.

Mrs. Crofton is going to Europe in April for a horticultural tour. While in England she will visit the world famous primrose gardens. She said one reason she hates to leave now is that she will miss her own primroses during their blooming season.

There are hundreds of people who stop at Crofton Gardens when they are in bloom. It must be very rewarding to help create such beauty and "pleasure to the eye of the beholder."

Just think of living and working in an almost constant air of SPRING and growing things and beauty!

Over A Backyard FENCE

By HELEN SPANGENBERG

If—one isn't lured outdoors to do a bit of digging among the daffodils, or walk along the beach, or remain indoors of an evening, hypnotized by TV—there are several new interesting books at the St. Joseph public library.

Among these is one entitled, "What's Right With America," which seems particularly appropriate with the new administration in Washington and the increasing interest of women in politics.

We are so used to diatribes on our American ills, mistakes, etc., etc., that it is refreshing to see such a book title, which substantiates our own convictions.

The sub-title of the book, which is a compilation of addresses by prominent Americans, from Bernard Baruch to Walter Reuther and from Dean Acheson to John Foster Dulles, is "New Perspectives on the Contemporary Scene." It is edited by Frederick Ungar.

In the introduction, Mr. Ungar explains the purpose of the anthology: "It is in the accusation of economic imperialism that the current myth about America makes itself most vocal . . . It is little known abroad, for instance, that substantial old-age pensions have become almost standard practice in American mass production industry . . . trail-blazing similar developments in other fields — often combined with profit-sharing plans. Or, that the great majority of Americans are property owners . . . is hard or difficult to understand why American labor does not regard state or community as instruments of oppression."

Basic in his contribution, "A Few Kind Words for Uncle Sam," reviews the contributions of America, both to war and to peace, and in the concluding paragraphs says: "The challenge of the American adventure seems as fresh today as when the country was founded. What does the American adventure symbolize? It is the belief that the ordinary man and woman can govern themselves. To contradict this theory of the divine right of kings, America brought forth the doctrine of the divine right of man—'all men are created equal . . . with certain inalienable rights.' Today we still champion this cause of popular government against that oldest of dogmas, that government cannot be left to the people, but must be entrusted to the benevolence or tyranny of an enthroned elite."

"The American system . . . has brought the people furthing along in their pursuit of happiness than any other system . . . They can revoke any law, fire any official, tax the rich, succor the poor. Under a police state, once imposed the people lose all ability to determine their future. Why change our form of government when we can use that government to make whatever changes we desire?"

Norman Thomas, whose introduction admits he's spent more time fighting in America than in any other great nation, not excluding some of those with more radical economic creeds. I came away from Moscow with a feeling that there was far more good fellowship between all kinds and conditions of men, far more social democracy, in New York."

And, David Lilienthal in his "American Credo," states: "It is very easy to talk about being against communism. It is equally important to believe those things which provide a satisfying and effective alternative. Democracy is that alternative."

"One of the tenets of democracy that grows out of that central core of belief is that the individual comes first, that all men are children of God and that their personalities are therefore sacred, is a deep belief in civil liberties and their protection."

Ralph Bunche, in the conclusion of "Prospects for Peace," after reviewing the progress of the United Nations and "democracy is at issue in the world today."

"The American people have built their great strength as a nation on the solid foundations of freedom, of individual liberty, and of the firm and unfaltering belief of a people widely diversified by race, culture, religion and national origin, in freedom as it finds expression in a democratic society. No foundation could be more secure or enduring. May we never waver in our devotion to this ideal."

. . . . "Peace is everyone's business today, and if we are to have it, everyone must work and sacrifice for it."

There are two speeches by Dwight Eisenhower made before he was elected president, or even campaigning. And though some of the spokesmen may differ politically, there is the same undercurrent of faith in America. This is summed up in "The American Destiny," by Walter Lippman:

. . . "America is now called to do what the founders and the pioneers always believed was the American task: To make the New World a place where the ancient faith can flourish anew, and its eternal promise at last be redeemed. To ask whether the American nation will rise to this occasion and be equal to this destiny is to ask whether Americans have the will to live.

"The American idea is not an eccentricity in the history of mankind. It is a hope and a pledge of fulfillment. The American idea is founded upon an image of a man and of his place in the universe, of his reason and his will, his knowledge of good and evil, his hope of a higher and a natural law, which is above all governments, and indeed of all particular laws: This tradition descends to Americans, as to all the Westerners, from the Mediterranean world of the ancient Greeks, Hebrews and Romans. The Atlantic is now the mediterranean sea of this culture and this faith."

Woman's Club Hears Talks On Denmark, Sweden, India

"American wives are better at bringing up their husbands," Mrs. Grethe Hartelius of Denmark told the Woman's club of the First Congregational church and their guests Friday.

In her native costume, Mrs. Hartelius was one of three Emmanuel Missionary college students who addressed the Woman's club guest day meeting in the YWCA. The other two speakers were Mrs. Raymond Broderson, who with her husband is a missionary to India, and Miss Annalisa Paulson of Sweden.

"Movies," Mrs. Hartelius continued, "have made the Danes think that there are three classes of Americans — millionaires, gangsters and cowboys."

She commented that although American living standards are high, Americans have to work for them, from her observation.

Referring to Denmark as "the outpost of democracy," because of the country's proximity to Russia, Mrs. Hartelius said that the Danes are the only other country to celebrate the Fourth of July with the United States. They display the American flag and shoot off fireworks, Mrs. Hartelius said.

"The four million people in Denmark," the speaker continued, "love to eat—usually seven or eight times a day—with gallons of coffee as accompaniment."

Also in her native dress, Miss Paulson stated that the Swedes, rather than spend money for arms, use it for better schools and to raise the standard of living.

Sweden, Miss Paulson continued, manufactures a great deal of fine steel and is second to the United States in paper and wood products.

"The Swede," she informed the group, "are close-mouthed, except over coffee, of which they consume about seven cups a day."

"Most old houses are painted red," she added, adding that "the Swedes love flowers and cleanliness, they are conservative and like tradition."

Miss Paulson described some of the Christmas, Easter and May day customs in Sweden, and at the conclusion of her talk she and Mrs. Hartelius demonstrated a Scandinavian dance and sang a song.

Wearing a native sari, the six yards of silk material which constitutes the dress of women in India, Mrs. Broderson described part of her five and one-half years there as a missionary.

Born in Douglas, Mrs. Broderson described herself as a "farm girl from Michigan." One of her three children was born in India. The Brodersons expect to return there in April after a furlough.

Interesting to her audience was the demonstration of how the sari is wound around to form the Indian dress. Mrs. Broderson also showed how, if the Indian woman owns only one sari, she launders it, one end at a time. When the first end is dried the garment is unwound and switched so that the other end can be washed.

Mrs. Broderson observed that although there are many women in universities, the professions and politics, there are not many in industry.

The Brodersons were stationed in Madras, the second largest city in India. In spite of Ghandi, Mrs. Broderson stated, the caste system still flourishes in India and poverty is depressing.

Miss Rachel Christman, dean of women at Emmanuel college, introduced the three young women.

Mrs. H. E. Hollensbe presided at the meeting for which opening devotions were led by Mrs. Victor Palenske.

Mrs. Frank T. Jensen and Mrs. Hollensbe presided at the silver service for the tea hour, pouring from a table arranged with an epergne of white narcissi and clusters of pink camellias.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. M. P. Burkholder, Mrs. M. H. Willis, Mrs. F. N. Stueland, Mrs. C. N. Hinman, Mrs. John Schreiber, Mrs. William W. Carver and Mrs. C. L. Milton.

It was announced that Mrs. A. I. Brown will be hostess for the March 20 meeting.
